SENATE BACKS BILL TO CURB EXEMPTION FROM JURY SERVICE

Better Juries Aim Of Bill; Solons Hasten Action

COLUMBUS, O., Mar. 31.—Complaining that jury system flaws block the road to justice in Ohio, the state senate today sent to the house of representatives a bill which promises to place responsibility for fair play in the courts upon the entire population—doctors, clergymen, lawyers, policemen, firemen and office holders not excluded.

Apparently agreeing that "unless we get better jury panels the confidence we once had in jury systems will rapidly vanish," the senate by a vote of 20-14 last night adopted the Lorchbach bill which exempts only national guardsmen in actual service from jury duty.

If sanctioned by the house and given the approval of Governor George White, the bill would remove from the list of those who may now claim exemption all physicians, preachers, priests, attorneys, officials, public employees and persons over seventy years of age in good health.

Pleading for passage of his bill, Senator David P. Lorchbach (D) of Cincinnati, declared that enactment of his measure would give Ohio the first effective jury code in the country.

By compelling all to serve who, in the discretion of the judge, are able, "we can get better jury panels than we have now, a need that is evident to all," Senator Lorchbach said.

Far broader powers would be given to judges in the selection of jurors if his bill were passed. Jurors might be summoned by mail instead of by served summons only, and paid jury commissions would be created.

Lauded by Republicans and Democrats alike, the Kane bill requiring county infirmaries to tend to allow husband and wife to occupy the same quarters was easily passed. Already having passed the house, the bill will now go to the governor for his signature.

Without any offer of explanation, Republican senate insurgents remained silent on the roll call on the vote on a Taft bill providing for zoning and planning of unincorporated territory in counties.

India Racial Strife Breaks Out Anew

BOMBAY, March 31.—Racial strife which has raged with bloody consequences in the united provinces between Hindus and Moslems the past week flared anew today with the cold-blooded murder of nineteen Moslems in a town opposite Cawnpore, scene of previous slayings.

The latest massacre occurred in Unao, located on the opposite shore of the Ganges River within view of Cawnpore. The Hindus, after killing the Moslems, threw the bodies into the Ganges.

Cawnpore remained quiet, and is gradually returning to normalcy. Heavily armed guards remained, however, to frustrate further racial outbreaks.

OIL COMPANIES TO CURTAIL IMPORTS

WASHINGTON, March 31.—American oil importers have reached a final agreement on a voluntary arrangement to curtail their imports over a period of ninety days in an attempt to harmonize them with domestic production, Secretary of the Interior William C. Gurnea announced today.

As chairman of the federal oil conservation board, Wilbur was advised that the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, the only company that had not joined the agreement, acquiesced. The arrangement is effective immediately.

It is understood the Royal Dutch Shell will curtail its imports something like fifty per cent, the Gulf Oil Co., about 25 per cent, and Standard of New Jersey about 45, 000 barrels daily.

FAVOR REPUBLICANS AT VERMONT POLLS

MONTPELIER, Vt., March 31.—Warren R. Austin, Burlington Republican, was the favorite today in Vermont's United States senatorial election. He is opposing Stephen Driscoll, St. Albans' Democrat.

Today's election is to fill the vacancy created by the death of Senator Frank L. Greene.

Vermont has not elected a Democratic senator since the sixties.

BABE FLIES HIGH

THE PAS, Man., March 31.—Although he obtained his first glimpse of the world from a cabin monoplane flying at an altitude of 5,000 feet the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Miller was getting along today as well as any normal baby should.

The plane bearing his mother to a hospital had barely gained its altitude after taking off from Mile 214 for a hospital when Baby Miller made his appearance and thereby earned the distinction of being the first known child to be born in an airplane in full flight.

The mother likewise is doing well, hospital attendants reported today.

BURKE WILL DEPEND UPON GANGSTERS TO FINANCE ATTORNEY

Killer Admits Being Nearly Broke; Is Awaiting Counsel

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., March 31.—Fred "Killer" Burke, described by police as "the most dangerous gangster in America" and the purported slayer of twenty-one men, is nearly broke, according to the killer himself today.

The super-assassin declared that he was depending on New York and Chicago gangsters to raise a fund to finance his defense against charges of first degree murder in connection with the slaying of Patrolman Charles Skelly here.

He was said to have had several thousand dollars at the time of his arrest but "it isn't near enough for my defense," he stated.

Burke, who less than two years ago posed as a retired and wealthy man and lived in a pretentious home here, declared that he was expecting an attorney from either Chicago or New York to fight the murder charges.

"There will be a lawyer here," Burke insisted, "I don't know who he will be, or where he will be from, but there will be one."

Barrett O'Hara, Chicago criminal lawyer, whose arrival here yesterday led to reports that he had been retained to defend Burke, left here late last night.

Manville, it was learned that officials here said that Mrs. Viola Brennerman, formerly of Kankakee, Ill., who lived with Burke as his wife prior to the Skelly slaying.

Police believe that the woman may be ready to talk now as the result of Burke's marriage to another woman, the daughter of a Missouri farmer.

April 5 was set as the date for examining trial when Burke was arraigned before Judge Joseph Collier, Jr. He refused to make any plea when arraigned, following his announced policy of "if they want me, they'll have to fight for me."

Burke, held in a closely guarded cell which has been termed escape-proof, was alternatively in a joking and surly mood.

Asked how he liked his narrow cell Burke replied that "it was almost as good as the Ritz."

He lost his attitude of good humor, however, after he inquired about his fishing tackle and golf clubs which he was forced to abandon here when he fled after the Skelly murder.

Told that his "wife" (Mrs. Brennerman) had sold them, he snarled, "Robbed of everything, eh?"

RETURN VERDICT IN SUICIDE - MURDER

MARYSVILLE, O., March 31.—An official verdict of murder and suicide was returned today in the deaths of George Allen Liggett, 19, former Marysville high school football captain, and Thomas Beach, special deputy sheriff of Plain City.

Liggett was slain by Beach, who later committed suicide, during what was said to be a liquor party at the youth's home in Plain City.

Coroner James Foster said. The coroner's verdict was based on the testimony of witnesses in an investigation of the double tragedy.

Denies Agreement Is Menace But Bows To British Plan

BERLIN, March 31.—Foreign Minister Dr. Julius Curtius announced today that the German government, in accordance with proposals made by Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson of Britain, has consented to submit the projected Austro-German customs union treaty to a juridical investigation by the League of Nations council.

Dr. Curtius, in making the official announcement, forecast exclusively by International News Service two days ago, qualified his statement to the federal council as follows:

"We cannot admit that such an investigation is necessary, but we do not reject it. Our political objection is directed against treating such a purely economic agreement as a danger to European peace."

"Mutual economic cares brought the German and Austrian governments together. It must also be remembered that the idea of regional economic agreements has frequently been applied by European nations in the past."

"Nobody, so far, has been able to show us one concrete point in violation of the Geneva protocol. We fear that various measures used here to charge a violation of the protocol have not been designed to protect Austrian independence, but to degrade Austria to a second-class power."

THINK SLAYER NEAR CAPTURE

Suspect Sought In Ohio Killing

DETROIT, March 31.—Police today were believed to be closing in on the murderer of Robert Stanley, alleged "Peety Racketeer," who was found slain in a ditch near Port Clinton, Ohio, Saturday.

Description of the alleged killer has been given to Toledo and Detroit police officials. Sheriff Arthur Rasmussen, of Ottawa County, Ohio, furnished the name of the suspect and the description was broadcast to the police departments.

Rasmussen also reported the finding of a revolver, believed to be the death weapon, at the scene of the crime.

Near Stanley's body also was found a blood-stained automobile, the property of Mrs. Gertrude Dwyer, 35, comely grocery store cashier. The woman surrendered to police and told a straightforward story. Police intimated that she would be freed soon.

She had known Stanley only five weeks, she said, and he posed as a medical student.

GOVERNOR VETOES AERONAUTICS BILL

COLUMBUS, O., March 31.—New efforts to design a satisfactory aeronautical code will probably follow in the wake of Governor Geo. White's veto of the Johnson bill which would have revised the state's present aviation laws, it was expected today.

The Johnson measure went into the discard last night when the governor returned it to the legislature with a veto message, taking exception to the bill's provision that any persons who violated the act or regulations issued by the state director of aeronautics, should be imprisoned.

A movement is already under way, it was understood, to draw up a new measure, similar to the Waste-basketed Johnson bill, that will meet the governor's objections.

MARTIN'S ALIBI IS REPEATED ON STAND AS DEFENSE STARTS

Witnesses Say Hymie Was In Akron At Time Of Murder

CLEVELAND, March 31.—The alibi story of "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin, which was ripped and nearly shattered by state witnesses, was given substantial support by two defense witnesses who took the stand in Martin's trial for the murder of William E. Potter today.

Backing up the assertions made by "Akron Mary" Outland Woodfield, sweetheart of Hymie, on the stand yesterday, that she and Martin were in Akron on the night of Feb. 3, when the murder is believed to have occurred, two Akron friends of Hymie testified in his behalf.

Mark F. Marion, salesman of Akron, related to the jury that he saw Martin in front of an Akron gasoline station about 8 p. m. on Feb. 3. He said he had known Martin for several months.

He was followed to the stand by Ade Kodish, also of Akron, who testified that he received a phone call from Hymie at Burke's Place, 25 Market St., a few minutes after 8 p. m. Mary, the first witness to present the alibi, said that Martin had stopped at the gasoline station to call up a friend about that time.

As the trial entered another day of sessions, the report was current that the defense would introduce evidence to show that Potter was no stranger to the apartment building in which he was slain.

This testimony was slated as the next "surprise" of the defense, which yesterday presented evidence revealing that Betty Gray and J. J. Redlick, held as material witnesses by the state, were in a murder suite an hour before the time set by the state for the killing.

While Fascists and Communists were in the forefront of the attack against the government, the more conservative Nationalists also aided in the assaults.

WILL HEAR BROTHER AGAINST BROTHER

IRONTON, O., March 31.—Glen Duty, now serving a term in Ohio Penitentiary for highway robbery, is to be returned to Ironton as a star witness for the state when his elder brother, Leroy Duty, goes on trial charged with the first-degree murder of Mildred Vance Courtney last June 3. It was learned today.

The younger brother will be asked to describe the slaying in detail, according to Prosecuting Attorney Lee D. Andrews. The trial is scheduled to get under way on April 7. A Painesville, O., newspaper woman may also be asked to testify, Andrews said.

PRISONER PICKS UP BABE - WALKS OUT

SUPERIOR, Wis., March 30.—The sheriff's office today was looking for a three-year-old baby who was the cause of the escape of C. W. "Red" Haggerty from the county jail where he was being held on a narcotic peddling charge.

Haggerty, whom police say has served in Leavenworth for trading in narcotics, took advantage of a crowded condition in the jail yesterday by picking up the child and walking to freedom with the three-year-old under his arm.

NOTORIOUS GANGSTER SLAIN IN FULL VIEW OF THEATER CROWDS

CHICAGO, March 31.—Max Tendler, put on the "spot" last night by two assassins, was widely known in the underworlds of New York and Chicago as a gangland spy, police informer and chieftain of a narcotic peddling ring, police revealed today.

Two gangsters, who had been lying in wait for Tendler, alias Max Williams, ran up to him as he was buying a newspaper and shot him. Theater crowds witnessed the slaying and saw the killers flee.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST ALIENS PLANNED BY LABOR DEPARTMENT

Government Enemies May Be Deported Under Ruling

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The labor department is to invoke the weapon of deportation against alien leaders in the Communist movement as a part of a vigorous drive against all aliens illegally in the country, it was learned today.

Backed by the recent action of the supreme court in approving, in effect, a lower court ruling that a Communist advocating overthrow of the government can be deported, the department is understood to be listing Communist leaders who can be reached under this power.

The action of the department in refusing to extend the visa of Feodor M. Zlatkin, general manager of the Amtorg Trading Corp., of New York, was hailed by Rep. Fish (R) of New York, chairman of the house committee which investigated Communist propaganda, as a move in the right direction.

Although congress failed to act upon any of the recommendations of his committee, Fish refuses to be discouraged. Instead he and Rep. Bachmann (R) of West Virginia, through speeches, have inaugurated a wide-spread campaign to create public sentiment.

The committee, among other things, recommended mandatory deportation of Communists and an amendment to the immigration act prohibiting their entry.

Fish insists that criticism and ridicule of the committee's report has given way to an approval which must be reckoned with in the next congress.

HITLER FIGHTS RADICAL CURB

Appeals To Courts Against Decree

MUNICH, Germany, March 31.—Adolf Hitler, militant leader of the German Fascists, announced today he would institute suit in the constitutional court against the dictatorial decree promulgated by President Von Hindenburg to curb radical activities.

At the same time Hitler ordered members of the Fascist party to obey scrupulously all restrictive measures imposed by the government while awaiting the expected judicial review.

The action of President Von Hindenburg, which curtails freedom of speech and assembly, provoked a political storm that already has fostered a demand for a special session of the Reichstag, which adjourned four days ago. Extremists are demanding that parliament be immediately reassembled.

While Fascists and Communists were in the forefront of the attack against the government, the more conservative Nationalists also aided in the assaults.

FAILED FOOTBALL COACH, EIGHT OTHERS, VICTIMS OF AIR CRASH

Trans-Continental Western Air Transport Plane Explodes In Mid-Air; Six Passengers, Two Pilots And Steward Dead; Ship Crashes To Ground On Kansas Farm None Escape Fate, Is Learned

BAZAAR, Kan., March 31.—Nine persons, including Knute Rockne, Notre Dame football coach, were killed when a passenger plane of the Transcontinental Western Air Lines exploded in midair and crashed to the ground.

EMPORIA, Kan., March 31.—Nine persons, including Knute Rockne, famous football coach of Notre Dame University, were killed today when a passenger plane of the Transcontinental Western Air Lines crashed on the farm of Seward Baker at Bazaar, Kansas. The dead includes six passengers, the pilot and co-pilot and steward of the ship. The plane took off from Kansas City at 9:15 a. m. and was enroute to Wichita. Bazaar is located thirty miles from here.

That Rockne was killed was definitely established in reports from Bazaar that none on the ship survived. Rockne was on the plane when it left Kansas City.

The passenger list of the plane was given as follows:

Knute Rockne, Christian W. D. Miller, S. Goldthwaite, C. A. Robrich, and also a passenger from Chicago and the two pilots, one of whom was Robert Frye.

Knute K. Rockne, killed in an airplane crash in Kansas Tuesday, was considered the most brilliant football mind in the country and originator of the modern open-style of the play which has seen the game reach its greatest popularity.

Rockne was born in Voss, Norway, a small village, March 4, 1888, and came to the United States in 1893, his parents moving to Chicago. He was educated in Chicago schools and after graduation from high school, worked as a sailor on lake ships.

He entered the railway mail service in 1906 and served four years when the desire for an education caused him to enroll at Notre Dame University, South Bend. He distinguished himself there not only in his chosen field of chemistry, but as a football player, being credited with Gus Dorais, a fellow player, with perfecting the forward pass that revolutionized the game.

Following his graduation he married and returned to the school as football line coach, head track coach and chemistry instructor. He was assistant to Coach Jess Harper from 1914 to 1917 and in the latter year Harper retired and Rockne was made head coach. His teams since then have attained phenomenal success on the gridiron, climaxed with the remarkable season last year when the Notre Dame eleven played through an unusually hard schedule without defeat, culminating with a victory over Southern California that brought the applause of the nation.

Because of the long trips taken by the team under Rockne, the Notre Dame players came to be known as the Ramblers. Rockne had also been winning fame recently as a writer and after-dinner lecturer, possessing a ready wit and able style of expression in both fields.

MISS ELSIE CANBY QUILTS COURT POST; SUCCESSOR APPOINTED

Appointment of Mrs. Martha McFadden, wife of Glenn McFadden, High St., as official shorthand reporter, succeeding Miss Elsie Canby, who has resigned to accept a position for a three-year term as one of seven Common Pleas Court stenographers at Akron, O., was announced Tuesday by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy.

Mrs. McFadden will enter upon her duties Wednesday. She was formerly employed as stenographer at The Hoover and Allison Co.

Describing Miss Canby as "the best shorthand reporter in the state," Judge Gowdy said that he had accepted her resignation with regret.

She was originally appointed stenographer of Common Pleas Court here under the late Judge C. H. Kyle and was reappointed by Judge Gowdy.

The vacancy at Akron to which she has been appointed was the result of the creation of a new judgeship by the state legislature, there now being six judges.

Miss Canby has been assigned to the court of Judge Walter B. Wadmaker but the duties of the seven shorthand reporters rotate. She has been stationed at Akron since January 12, having been granted a three months leave of absence from the local court, to enable her to ascertain whether the new post would be satisfactory.

During her absence John N. Martin, Springfield, reporter for the second district court of Appeals, has acted temporarily as court stenographer.

Her duties, Miss Canby explains, will be similar to those here, although the work is more involved. She will make her home in Akron.

Miss Canby formerly served as secretary-treasurer and later as president of the Ohio Shorthand Reporters Association.

DOUBLE VERDICT IS RETURNED IN DEATH OF FORMER ACTRESS

Suicide Or Accident Found By Coroner After Death Leap

NICE, France, March 31.—Mystified by conflicting testimony after an inquest into the death plunge of Mrs. David Townsend, American wife of an Australian millionaire and ex-follies star known as Peggy Davis, police today returned a verdict officially ascribing the tragedy to "suicide or accident."

The chief of police at Laturble, who has charge of the investigation, said a farewell note found beside her body at the foot of "suicide leap" cliff, undoubtedly was written Saturday night, a short time before the car hurtled over the precipice. He pointed out, however, that its contents did not specifically indicate intention to commit suicide on the part of the writer, and therefore decided on a "suicide or accident" verdict.

The former Ziegfeld star, it was stated, will be buried in the Catholic cemetery at Eze tomorrow, a short distance from "suicide leap" cliff.

RED CROSS CARRIES ON CONSTANTLY FOR PUBLIC SAYS JUDGE

Functions Without Disaster Guests At Dinner Are Told

"It takes a great disaster or catastrophe to put across the Red Cross movement, although the Red Cross is something that works at other times than that of disaster," declared Judge Harry G. Gram, Springfield, juvenile court judge of Clark County and chairman of the Red Cross chapter there, at the annual dinner meeting of Greene County Chapter, American Red Cross, at the First U. P. Church Monday evening.

Those great motivating movements that brings people together in their desire to help the other fellow and it is made up of those people who have real sympathy, compassion and desire to help others," Judge Gram said. In explaining how the Red Cross functions at other times than those of disaster he explained the case of the ex-serviceman, the Junior Red Cross, home hygiene classes and other activities carried on by the organization.

Fred C. Spalding, Columbus, regional director of the Red Cross, spoke on the drought relief situation and quoted statistics showing the drive for $10,000,000 for funds for this purpose conducted by the Red Cross, was over-subscribed.

The speaking program followed a three course dinner served by women of the church and covers were placed for 125 persons. The Rev. J. P. Lytle, pastor of the First U. P. Church, delivered the invocation. Wilson W. Galloway, Cedarville, chairman of the local chapter, presided and spoke briefly on plans of the chapter for the coming year.

Entertainment was furnished by J. E. Balmer, of the O. S. and S. O. Home, who sang two groups of solos, accompanied by Miss Marjorie Street; Mrs. James Wilson III sang two solos, accompanied by Miss Margaret Moorehead and two groups of readings were given by Miss Mildred Mason. Benediction was pronounced by the Rev. L. L. Gray, Jamestown.

Special guests at the meeting introduced to the audience were the Rev. Donald Elwood, Wilmington; Miss Ruth Newcom, Urbana, executive secretary of the Chapman County Chapter of the Red Cross and Mrs. Martha Abbott, Springfield executive chairman of the Clark County chapter. Various township and village chairmen of Greene County were also introduced by Mr. Galloway.

UNEMPLOYED ARE NOT SO POPULAR

CLEVELAND, O., March 31.—Ohio cities are showing some disposition to provide shelter for the "hunger marchers" who are scheduled to tramp from all parts of the state to Columbus April 16 to 27, but are "not so ready" to provide food, the state committee of unemployed councils, sponsoring the march reported today.

Four routes have been planned for the march, starting from Cleveland, Youngstown, Cincinnati and Toledo. The first groups will begin the march on April 16 and arrive in Columbus on April 23, according to present plans.

One city council not only refused to grant the marchers food and lodging but ordered the police department to instruct the delegation to use another route, the committee reported.

Easter Fashion Parade Sunday To Be Colorful

EASTER—that day looked forward to by women when they may don their new Spring attire—is only a few days away and Xenia's ready-to-wear stores are bedecked with an array of new coats, suits, dresses and accessories, everything to suit a feminine heart.

The outstanding feature noticed in women's apparel this season is the wide use of contrasting colors in such a manner as to present a pleasing picture. The contrasting color idea is carried out extensively in dresses and jackets.

Jewel crepes and spongy wools are the leading materials being shown in coats. Blacks and browns, with a few greens and tans, are the leading colors but a new shade introduced this year in coats is "skipper" blue, which is a shade lighter than navy. Coats are soft and loose and give a wrappy effect and are slightly bloused above the waistline.

Collars are gracefully draped and belts on nearly all of the coats shown are crushed. Suits are to be worn more this Spring than last and are being shown in the same colors as the coats. A new shade introduced in suits this year is bandanna, a light yellow-red. The color contrast may be brought into the suit ensemble for the blouse worn may be of a contrasting shade to blend with the suit. Lapin and sheared lapin jackets are popular this Spring and these may further emphasize the color contrast.

Dresses will be similar to those worn last year only there are a few points that are different this season. Pleats, both box and fine, are taking the place of flares. Sleeves are to be short or three-quarter length. The color contrast was noticed in one frock where it was light above the waistline and of a darker contrasting shade below. New this Spring are the "Sunday night supper" frocks which serve a double purpose. One of these attractive frocks shown at a local store is of all-over eyelet embroidery, in a pale pink shade. The dress is form-fitting and is ankle length. It is worn over a silk slip of a deeper pink shade. With the dress one wears a short taffeta jacket, the same shade as the slip. The jacket may be removed for dancing and the dress serves the same purpose as a formal evening gown.

Hat styles are different this year, in that the brims are wider and the crowns are lower. Hats are worn farther back on the head and to be stylish the hair should show. Bakous, Panmalaque, finer Panama weaves, some hair braids and rough straws are the straws being shown. In shoes colored kids are fashionable and blue seems to be the outstanding color although blonde shoes are also popular. Black, of course, is good as always, but snake-skin and lizard skin shoes are "taboo" this season.

Accessories play an important part in midday's costume and should not be overlooked. Gloves are wrinkly at the wrist and tend to widen toward the top. They are longer and if necessary long gloves may be worn over long sleeves to give them the appearance of short sleeves. There is not much change in hose this year only more silk mesh hose are being shown and seem to be gaining in popularity. The color contrast may further be brought into the ensemble in the use of jewelry and flowers.

The little miss has not been overlooked in the Spring array. The color contrast is evident here, too, but children's clothes are getting away from pastel shades. Effective contrasts in color can be brought about by the use of yokes in the little miss' dress. Jacket costumes are popular for children this year and the bolero jacket seems to be leading in the jacket styles for the little girls.

If the weather man is kind and Easter Sunday dawns bright and clear Xenia streets will present a gala appearance when midday steps out in her new costume.

PHOTOS SHOW HOW "KILLER" BURKE FIXED NOSE

Held in an escape-proof cell, Fred Burke, wanted for some 20 murders, is kept under heavy guard at St. Joseph, Mich., awaiting trial for the slaying of a policeman.

HORSES RUN AWAY

MOUNDSVILLE, Pa., March 31.—Russell Carter can testify that not only is transportation still carried on by horses, but that occasionally the almost forgotten "run-away" act is still performed. Carter sustained the loss of his left forefinger when a run-away mule team dragged him for several yards with his hands entangled in the reins before he could extricate himself.

WORK HAD KEPT MARY AWAY FROM ROMANCE

SPRING IS HIGH! GEORGE IS BACK

NEW YORK knows Spring can't be far away, for George McManus, the amiable creator of "Bringing Up Father," which is published daily in The Gazette, has come back.

McManus' return from California each spring has become one of those harbingers of milder days that the birds watch and the tulips consult before they venture into the chill atmosphere of Manhattan winters.

"When the orange trees begin to bud," McManus explains, "I get the itch to go back to the scenes where Jiggs and Maggie first came into being. So here I am, on schedule."

As he approached the Empire State Building, new "tallest building in the world," completed since he last was in New York, McManus remarked, referring to a recent experience of Jiggs: "I'm glad Jiggs didn't get marooned on a beam on the top of that place. He might never have gotten down."

McManus expects to combine the fine arts of living and playing with the tremendous amount of work necessary to the daily production of "Bringing Up Father."

AUTOIST HURT WHEN MACHINES COLLIDE

Bruce J. Leveck, N. Detroit St., escaped with a cut over the left eye when his coupe collided with another auto on the Jamestown Pike Monday afternoon, overturned on its side, slid along the highway nearly seventy-five feet and then righted itself.

The Leveck auto struck a roadster driven by Harold Sanders, Lower Bellbrook Pike. The front of the roadster was damaged and Mrs. Sanders suffered from shock. She was taken to the office of Dr. R. L. Haines, Jamestown.

L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, learned the Sanders car passed a horse and buggy parked off the north side of the highway just as Leveck's machine approached from the opposite direction.

Leveck applied the brakes suddenly, throwing the rear end of his coupe into the roadster. Leveck's car was badly damaged.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Children, obey your parents in the Lord: for this is well pleasing unto the Lord. Fathers, provoke not your children to anger, lest they be discouraged.—Colossians, iii, 20, 21.

AROUSED PUBLIC OPINION

Someone asked recently whether an American public did not alter all want gangland activity with its racketeering, violence, bloodshed, and all the trimmings.

The answer seems to be pretty definitely contained in the rather consistent news items from Chicago lately, all of which tell the story of the apparent losing fight of gangdom against the constituted agencies of law and order.

Chicago evidently is slowly but inexorably flattening out organized enemies of society. Subterfuges and legal technicalities, for so long gangland's air-tight defense against punishment, appears to be melting away in the white heat of an aroused public sentiment.

The American people are frequently slow to anger; often tolerant, amused by the bad-boy escapades of a portion of its citizenship, and is frequently mistaken for callous indifference or weak-kneed apathy. And then suddenly the public gets enough and the bad boy with his swagger and braggadocio feels the heavy hand of outraged society.

The American people do not want commercialized vice and crime, which is gangland's only reason for existence. The early history of the West, when lawlessness rode roughshod over peace-abiding citizenship and for a time apparently was in supreme control, recalls the complete rout of these criminal elements, by an aroused citizenship. History repeats, and while things are done differently today the great American love of fair play and justice will have its day.

IMPROVING BUSINESS

So many reports of improving business are coming in, that it would seem as if the pessimists and doubters must at last be convinced. Steel production has long been considered one of the best measurements of the rise and fall of trade, and steel production has now increased for 11 consecutive weeks, and the mills at this writing are operating at 91 per cent of capacity. As there is a tendency for such plants to keep increasing their capacity, this probably means a considerably larger volume than 57 per cent production would have meant a few years ago.

The plant capacity of most of our industries is much in excess of the demand for the product. A 75 per cent production in any industry usually indicates a large degree of activity, and it would seem as if steel production would get up to that point before long.

A slow but steady recovery indicates a healthy rise from depression, which is not built merely on speculative hopes. The country showed in the spring of 1930, a quite active recovery from the speculative smash of 1929, but it was too abrupt to last.

Now it is evident that whatever recovery develops is not created because speculators are bidding up stocks, or producers are banking on guesses. The speculators have been much discouraged for some time, and for the most part are waiting for business to show prosperity before they risk any more money.

When an industry expands now, after the prolonged period of slow business, it is almost invariably because dealers are finding themselves short of the things the people want to buy, so that they are sending in actual orders for new goods. That kind of gain is something substantial on which people can bank. We can expect to see much more of it in Ohio before midsummer.

AMERICA A FRIEND

Many enterprises of other nations needing to be financed send representatives to America, a land friendly to worthy causes in the interests of humanity. Recently Rabindranath Tagore of India came seeking our interests in the Hindu people; his main interest was in a far sighted plan for the reconstruction of Indian villages; he also sought to raise $125,000 to finance the cause of Dr. Harry Trimbess, who will return with the poet to direct Tagore's Institute of Rural Health situated at Santiniketan, 100 miles west of Calcutta, where Tagore established an international university thirty years ago investing $250,000 of his own fortune.

Tagore at one time said that he did not need Christ to get along in this world, but he was very willing to have the American Friends Service Commission support his campaign for funds; he was ready to use the fine Christian spirit of America to further his interests in India. Perhaps some day he will find himself in a position like Julian the apostate, who in his last moment cried out "O Gallilean, Thou hast conquered."

STUDENT SOLICITORS

Many young men are trying to obtain money for an education, by selling articles from door to door. One naturally feels sympathy with any young man who is ambitious enough to earn money for an education. It is out of that spirit that men have gone on to success and achievement.

Such young fellows however, often need advice. Sometimes the kind of education they seek is not the kind best suited to their needs. They conceive the idea that if they can only graduate from some college, their path to success is easy. But that is not the case. The college diploma is no meal ticket.

Boys who try to earn money in this way should not make an appeal that is practically a request for charity. If they try to persuade people to buy something they do not want to help them through college, they might just as well ask for a direct gift of money.

Some of these boys approach people with a long prepared rigmarole of a speech, prepared by the sales managers of some agency, which is supposed to handle a possible buyer very tactfully, and gradually break down his "sales resistance." More frequently however, this approach has so much tedious circumlocution, and it takes so much time to listen to it, that the possible buyer is irritated and prejudiced.

Such canvassers do best when they offer some useful thing to people and do it in a few words. Such soliciting is often overdue. If it reaches the point where it competes to any extent with local business concerns, they have some right to complain. So many people are trying to sell things from door to door, that relatively few of them can accomplish much. The majority of them would be better to go to work with their hands on any useful job that can be found.

Mystery stories are especially valuable because they give highbrow and lowbrow at least one common interest.

Ninety million were donated to charity by New Yorkers last year, but far greater amounts went to faith and hope.

An East Orange banker threw pies at two robbers. And yet there those who say the movies are not educational.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK.—I've been in the up-all-night racket for twenty-five years," says Jimmy Durante, Broadway's irrepressible play-boy, in his new book, "Night Clubs."

"It gives you a mazda tan and round shoulders," he continues, "but you do meet a lot of interesting people."

Evidently it also encourages a creative memory.

How does the ancient wheeze go?—Early to bed, early to rise, and you never meet any interesting people."

TAXI THREAT

New York authorities are said to be devoting thoughtful attention to a mental test for motorists devised by the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles in Connecticut, and thousands of honest taxi drivers are breathing hard at the prospect of impending disaster.

Applicants for licenses this year in Connecticut are faced with 100 questions planned to reveal something of their character, intelligence and judgment. Some of the questions follow:

"What day of the week is today? What day of the month? Name the Governor of your State? How many are dependent on your earnings? Do you carry life insurance?"

The man who, with several dependents, carries no life insurance in apt to be irresponsible.

THE LIONS GET DANIEL

One by one the old heroes are slipping off the pedestals. Washington's gone, Lincoln has been toppled over, and Daniel Webster is out.

Samuel Hopkins Adams wrote a book about Webster called "The Godlike Daniel." It's been lying around the house till I got tired looking at it. The other night I opened it up and started to read.

I learned that Webster had no inherited wealth. He was totally incapable of saving from his very large earnings. He could stay in the House and Senate only if he accommodated bankers and capitalists would give him secret retainers, advance secret loans on "insufficient if not sham security," and raise funds to pay his debts, as was done both in Boston and New York.

SUMMING UP

It was disconcerting to read that "The Godlike Daniel" was constantly pressing measures in Congress which would have vastly increased the value of his speculations or would have brought him fat legal fees; and that as Secretary of State he was not above giving financier friends advance tips on Supreme Court decisions.

That Webster him's I was under no illusion as to the moral status of these things is illustrated by his habit of marking his letters not only "Strictly Confidential" but often "Private As Murder."

It begins to look as if we need a new set of heroes—or maybe a fresh crop of biographers.

QUEST FOR LADY NICOTINE

The Bowery bum has the reputation of spending his days and nights sprawling ignobly in some dank and dingy hide-away.

As a matter of fact, the Worthy Brother does very little sprawling. When he isn't looking for food or a place to flop for the night, he's peddling in quest of tobacco. That is the one thing he misses more than anything else.

His trail lies close to the curb, eyes down, looking for cigar and cigarette butts.

He gets his setting-up exercise bending over to pick them up.

South Sea Bubble

What is meant by the South Sea Bubble?

The term refers to the financial scheme organized in England, in 1711, by the South Sea company, to pay the national debt. The company assumed the debt in return for an annual payment of 600,000 pounds for a number of years and a monopoly of trade in the South Seas. In 1720 the company proposed to assume the entire debt of over 30 millions for a guarantee of 5 per cent per annum for 7-12 years. The value of the stock was increased until it was quoted at $1,000 a share (August, 1720) when the chairman and some of the directors sold out. This awakened the public, and the crash followed (1720). Thousands of stockholders were ruined and parliamentary investigation showed that some of the cabinet members were involved.

HOME, JAMES

STEWART ON TOUR SEES POLITICAL IMPORTANCE OF STATE LEGISLATURES

MADISON, Wis.—After watching the big congressional show in Washington for quite awhile, state legislatures, like Wisconsin's and one or two other states, where I have seen them in operation in the last few days, seem rather small-town stuff.

And yet, once, when I made substantially this same remark to a practical politician, expressing some surprise that capable men could be found to attend to such provincial lawmaking, he answered: "What surprises me is that capable men are willing to trifle away their time in Washington, with so many more profitable issues at stake in the legislatures of their various home states."

With that he related how William S. Vare, Philadelphia's Republican boss, on one occasion had to forego an extra term in congress (he is out of it now on account of his health, but for many years regularly occupied a seat there regularly, this one interval alone excepted) because questions of such vital consequence to his particular group of political interests were pending in Pennsylvania that his leadership in the Keystone State legislature was absolutely indispensable.

As a matter of personal vanity Bill preferred being a national representative, but when duty called, mere consideration of social prestige promptly went into the discard in favor of strict utilitarianism which meant being on the job at Harrisburg.

Tammany takes the same view. It is a commonplace in Washington that Manhattan's seats in congress, in so far as the Tiger's followers occupy them, are filled by those of the faithful who are regarded as entitled to distinction of some sort, but whose abilities or experience are deemed insufficient to justify sending them to Albany. Tammany's theory is that the national capital is a place where, for reasons of civic pride, it is desirable to have representatives with the necessary qualifications to make a good appearance. At the state capital it wants go-getters.

The popular idea is that the state legislatures are preparatory schools for congress. Tammany's idea is just the reverse. Having tried a man out in Washington and approved of him, his policy undoubtedly would be to promote him into the New York legislature, were it not for the fact that the chap himself probably would howl at his promotion for demotion. A Bill Vare would understand, but Bill Vares are not numerous.

Congress does not do as many important things as one might imagine. It talks about a great many but it is mighty seldom that it declares war or votes a constitutional amendment. There is too much pulling and hauling; too many sectional and other interests working in diverging directions.

State legislatures attain more actual results. Folk like Bill Vare know this. Bill realized perfectly that he could be spared from congress for two years without making any difference whatever, but when a matter that concerned him was hanging fire in Harrisburg he was conscious that it behooved him to be there and attend to it.

Tammany is as alert as Bill. It can think of nothing that congress is likely to do materially to the Tiger's prejudice or advantage. It can think of plenty that the state legislature might do one way or the other.

Here in Madison the other day the Wisconsin legislature voted an authorization to the state to engage in power production and sale whenever and wherever necessary to bring private power producers to terms by the competitive method.

The incident illustrates the difference between Washingtonian and state legislation.

For a dozen years Senator Norris has been trying to force a similar experiment at Muscle Shoals, but either congress has turned it down or the president has vetoed it, as at the last session.

It takes a state legislature at last to initiate the test.

It should work just as well in Wisconsin as it would at Muscle Shoals. In fact, better, for it is a completed experiment. Senator Norris had to modify his to suit an extent, to get a majority in its favor, that it is doubtful how conclusive it would have been. There will be no strings whatever on Wisconsin's.

The beauty of state legislation appears to be that it is less cumbersome, because a legislature represents a compact, more homogeneous unit than congress.

Once the time is ripe for a legislature to act, it is harder to delay indefinitely.

Obviously this is why individuals like Bill Vare and organizations like Tammany are so everlastingly on their toes concerning their state law-making bodies, whereas Washington simply is a social rallying place, for all they care.

Potato Soup Toast Strips
Cold Boiled Ham Potato Chops
Apple-Cake Salad
Ice Box Cake Coffee

The toast to serve with the potato soup should be made the very last thing so as to have it piping hot. Butter it, cut in narrow strips and serve at once.

Today's Recipes

Potato Soup—Six medium sized potatoes, six eggs, one tablespoon butter, two teaspoons flour, one cup milk, salt and pepper to taste, water. Pare and halve potatoes. Cover with water and boil until tender. Drain and mash. Add salt and then add the water you drained from the potatoes a little at a time until all has been added, making a smooth, thin paste. Then set on fire to boil. Mix flour and milk until smooth and add to soup when boiling. Have eggs boiled hard. Slice in dish and pour soup over. Add pepper and butter and serve hot. Serves six persons.

Ice Box Cake—Two small cakes sweet chocolate, five eggs, three tablespoons confectioner's sugar, two tablespoons hot water, one teaspoon vanilla, lady fingers, about one dozen. Separate lady fingers, line pan with same and pour custard over them. Another layer of lady fingers, custard, etc. Place in refrigerator for twelve hours. Cut and serve with whipped cream. To make custard: Beat yolks of eggs stiff and add melted chocolate and beat, add sugar and beat, add water and vanilla and beat. Beat whites of eggs very stiff and add, beating the combined ingredients thoroughly. Line pan with waxed paper as it makes it easier to remove and cut.

Babes' Care Is Problem of Divorcee

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

A worried mother, aged 24, writes that she has divorced her husband who never supported his little family very well, even in prosperous times, and who in other ways was impossible.

She took her babies and went home to her people and worked out for their support. Her parents are not old, but work hard and live comfortably although they are not well off. Her father thinks her mother should not have the care of the two little girls, aged three and five, as it is too hard for her.

The young mother wants to earn money to educate her babies, but cannot seem to get away to do so because she has to care for them. The children's father is out of work and cannot, if he would, contribute to their support.

Worried mother would like to take a nurse's training, but must make up two years of high school work before she would be accepted, and then three more years of training before she would be ready to earn money. She asks my advice.

I am afraid you will have to give up the idea of training for nursing for the present, Worried Mother. Your very best bet would be to get a job as housekeeper somewhere where you could have the children with you.

Failing that, maintain a small home for the children and yourself, get someone to care for them during the day while you work and you care for them nights. The older little girl will soon be going to school. Or, you might, by taking a good sized house, take in roomers or boarders and so have the children with you and care for them.

It hardly seems fair that your brother should finance your education. You are young enough so that you can wait awhile until the children are a little older before you try to take the course you wish.

How does your mother feel about the matter? It is hard on her to have the care of the little ones besides all her other work, and it is too bad that your father makes you feel your obligations to them, even though you do so appreciate what they have done and are doing for you. Maybe both he and your mother would prefer that you stay with them, take care of the children and help them with the work.

Think over some of these ways of getting along. Some way will be found. I agree with you that you should be earning money if it can be done without leaving the entire care of your little family on your mother.

B. L.: Maybe your parents have very good reasons for disliking the boy B. L. Don't run away and marry. That would not make you happier. Wait awhile, don't tease them, and see if things won't change.

Mrs. P.: Blonde slippers with white evening dress would be all right, or black slippers would be good, especially if you were something else black on the white dress, a black velvet sash, black flower or black beads and earrings. The black and white color scheme is so good nowadays. I hope you have a nice time.

Fat or Thin, Know Your Type

By GLADYS GLAD

Sally Phipps, the pretty little red-haired actress, who recently deserted Hollywood to appear in one of the better Broadway shows, is considered one of the best dressed women in the theatrical profession. And Sally claims that it's because she has studied herself and knows exactly what she can and what she can't wear.

Women who really study themselves with any great degree of care before they select their gowns are, unfortunately, decidedly in the minority. The tubby female who billows about in a sea of ruffles and voluminous skirts certainly doesn't know what she can, and what she can't wear. And neither does the tall, thin damsel who clothes her spare frame in the straightest and severest of frocks.

Clothes can do so much for a woman that it is regrettable that more judgment is not shown in their selection.

With the spring styles demanding suits and jacket effects, the woman whose figure defects are slight has an excellent opportunity to appear at her best. For a style so effectively conceals minor figure defects as the short suit coat or jacket. Of course, if you bounce the Toledo over past the 200 mark, you can't expect a jacket to make you look like a 100-pounder. But for concealing that spare tire around the waistline, that over-plump bust, that fat, well-padded diaphragm, the jacket suit can't be beaten.

The new suits and jackets are given a distinctly feminine touch by dainty collars and cuffs, jabots and lace ruffles. And the blouses that are worn with some of them are also profusely befringed and beaded. Few women find such styles unbecoming, but the really fleshy woman would do well to eschew the frilly jabots and ruffy collars. They will not only make her face appear broader and rounder, but will also increase the apparent size of the upper part of her body. For her, the narrow collar, are more flattering. And they can be tucked or pleated to give the desired feminine touch without detrimentally influencing the proportions of the face and figure.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Blackheads
Ugly Duckling: It is indeed hazardous to attempt to remove blackheads with a pin. Don't try it. Correct cleansing methods, the use of an astringent, and frequent egg packs will eventually clear your skin of these blemishes.

Finger nails
Mrs. B. B.: You will have to wait for the white spots on your nails to grow out. These spots result from bruises. Take care that you do not knock your nails, and never use a hard implement to push back your cuticle.

Constipation
Worried Sick: Yeast is rich in vitamin B. It is not habit-forming. Correct diet and exercise will help to remedy constipation. Add more of the bulky foods to your diet, such as bran, spinach, chard, cabbage, broccoli, celery and fresh fruits. Drink from 8 to 10 glasses of water a day.

Editor's Note: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and postage. For the articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs," 2 cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

Apportion Calories for Meals

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

If theoretical calculations are correct, a person will have to reduce the diet by 4,000 calories a day to lose one pound a day. A person only eat about 3,000 calories a day. If that is all you are consuming you would only lose a little less than a pound a day if you ate nothing at all.

The explanation for this, which I gave last week, is that when you do not eat anything you are really not starving. You are living on your own tissues: the body is breaking down its own flesh and living on that. That is why you lose weight—naturally. The point is that the tissue it breaks down is fat. And fat furnishes nine calories per gram and there are 466 grams in a pound (avoirdupois); 466 times nine equal about 4,200 calories (in a pound of body fat). The adult body requires about 3,000 calories a day, so the starving body will burn three-quarters of a pound of its own fat a day.

So on no food at all you will lose only a little less than a pound a day. There will probably be some actual loss than that owing to water loss, but that is the basic calculated loss.

This shows what a hard struggle it is to lose weight. It can be done but it means effort.

Now, of course, no one expects you to go without food, for any length of time. For any purposes this is unhealthy. In spite of the starvation cure cranks. But a diet containing 1,200 to 1,500 calories is not dangerous for overweight, a person weighing 130 pounds needs about 2,000 calories at moderate activity. So if you calculate you should weigh 130 pounds with safety until you get there.

Many people worry about calculating such diets. The scales are a bugaboo. The weights are all figured in grams and that is a nuisance. Let us then calculate a reducing diet for 1,300 calories to gether.

First apportion the calories for meals—300 for breakfast, 600 for the midday meal, and 400 for supper. This is on the principle that the big meal of the day should be at noon, at the height of activity so you can work it off by evening. The small meal at night because while you are asleep, absorbing it you are asleep, making no effort, using up little fuel. So do not give yourself a surplus to store up.

Then apportion the food elements. We will use a high carbohydrate diet: it is more palatable, more filling, gives a greater variety. Besides, to consume its own fat we should have a good amount of carbohydrate to balance it. Most of us consume about 400 grams of carbohydrate a day; so, since we are reducing our whole diet about half, we will leave the carbohydrates at 200 grams. There are four calories per gram in carbohydrates; they contribute therefore 800 of our total 1,300 calories for the day.

We should have a little over half a gram of protein per pound of body weight so for a person of 130 pounds we need 70 to 80 grams. This yields 280 to 320 calories. With the carbohydrates this makes about 1,100 calories, leaving about 200 calories of the remaining 1,300 to be made up from the fat. As fat yields nine calories a gram, that means about 20 to 25 grams of fat. (Always leave yourself a little margin. Dietary calculation need not be too precise.)

So our diet requires 200 grams of carbohydrate, 70 to 75 grams of fat in round numbers. I will calculate such a diet and publish it tomorrow. In the meantime try to figure one for yourself for comparison.

Life Story of Mayor James J. Walker of New York

WALKER'S LEAP FROM SONGSTER TO SENATOR

Sketched by R. J. SCOTT

THERE WAS A TIME in Walker's life when he'd rather have written a successful song than eat.

ANOTHER SONG. "Will You Love Me in December as You Do in May?" brought him a small amount of fame.

JAMES J. WALKER at the time he was a state senator. He was popularly known as "the boy orator of Greenwich Village."

WALKER'S PERSONALITY was ideal for a politician. Song writing began to lose ground. He was elected to the assembly in 1910.

STUDYING LAW at night, he obtained a degree from the New York Law School in 1912, and was admitted to the New York bar the same year.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED by Phil

Of course you know—well, maybe not personally—but anyway you have heard of Tyus Raymond Cobb, probably the greatest star baseball has ever produced.

Cobb, you know, was a mental genius and they still like to recall instances of his daring base running feats.

In a recent address recorded in "The Methodist Layman," Branch Rickey, vice-president and general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, who, you may be interested to know is a former Ohio Wesleyan athlete and is the originator of the "Knot-Hole Club" for young boys, giving the youngsters a chance to see the game free, tells a story about the Georgia Peach to illustrate how Cobb made his own "breaks."

"Once we were playing the Detroit Tigers at Detroit. We lost the game that day by a score of 3 to 2. I remember in the eleventh inning, when the Detroit players came to bat, I called Carl, the pitcher over to me and asked: 'Do you know the third hitter this inning?'"

"Yes, I do," he said.

"You will get the first two men, but don't pass that third."

"He was a great base runner and a champion stealer. His name was Cobb—Cobb. You have heard of him, and I wished many a day that I had not. I did not want them to walk him. I wanted them to make him hit."

"Apparently Carl did not think much of the suggestion because he did walk him. I can see that tantalizing way that Ty had. He looked like he was going to run down to second. Carl threw the ball over. He had taken his position. He had a movement and a stance that was very decisive. You could tell what he was going to do. Carl threw the ball over and he made a slide to the bag, and the umpire paid no attention. Sometimes they are right; he was on this occasion."

"Then Leary cut the comedy and threw the ball high. When Cobb ran way out, Wellman saw his chance and threw the ball, and Cobb slid in. The umpire said he was safe, although it was a closer play than the other. Leary then pretended to throw the ball higher and finally Cobb ran way out and a second time came back."

"I thought it better to get Cobb going backward than forward, so I suggested that he throw the ball higher. I ought never to have said it. I made a mistake; Leary made a mistake. He never should have obeyed his manager on this occasion. He threw the ball higher just as Cobb ran away out the third time—but he never came back. He kept right on running. The man on first just reached the ball on the end of his finger but did not catch it. He picked it up quickly and hesitated."

"Well, then the ball was finally thrown to second base. It hit in front of the bag and bounced over Lavan's head. Cobb came down, touched second base, and angularly went on toward third without a ghost of a change to make it. The third baseman knowing the abandonment of that fellow Cobb and his slide, knowing that, when he set out voluntarily to get an objective, he was willing to pay the price to get it—having this knowledge in his head—had one eye on Cobb's shiny spikes and the other eye on the ball."

"I then saw the quickest reflex action it was ever my chance to see. That boy Cobb had reflex centers in his heels. He did not have time to telegraph his brain. He slid twelve feet in front of third base. And when the dust cleared away, the ball had fallen out of the hands of the third baseman and was going over toward the concrete in front of the grandstand and before we could get that ball he had scored. I saw the crowd tumbling out from every place."

"I said to the umpire: 'Interference, interference, Tom, at third base!' He did not make a slide for the base, but he made play for the ball."

"Mr. Rickey," he said then, "listen to me, Give the boy credit. He made his own breaks."

REVEAL NEW FRONT FOR DRUG STORE

Exterior and interior remodeling work in progress at a room in the Allen Bldg. formerly occupied by the Sayre Drug Store on S. Detroit St. is nearing completion, the handsome new front being disclosed by removal of the superstructure Monday.

(This is the second of a series of stories on the life of Mayor James J. Walker of New York.)

By HOWARD P. JONES
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, March 31.—"From songsters to senator" might have been the title of the biography of James J. Walker if it had been written some years ago.

For there was a period in the life of the man who is now the highest-paid mayor in the country when he'd rather have written a successful song than eat, and it looked for a time as though he might do neither or both.

Paul Dresser, song writer, brother of Theodore Dreiser, famous writer, was a neighbor of his, and "On the Banks of the Wabash" was on the lips of the nation. Jimmy tried his hand at writing songs, and soon had one published, "Good-Bye Eyes of Blue."

The song for which he was to become famous in a mild way, however, was one he was to have dined into his ears many years later when he ran for mayor; "Will You Love Me in December as You Do in May?" It runs as follows:

"Now, in the summertime of life, sweetheart,

You say you love but me.

Gladly I'll give my ear to you

Throbbing with ecstasy.

But last night I saw while dreaming,

The future old and gray.

And I wondered if you'll love me

then, dear,

Just as you do today.

Will you love me in December

as you do in May?

Will you love me in the same old-

fashioned way?

When my hair has all turned gray,

Will you kiss me then and say,

That you love me in December

as you did in May?"

Even in the face of this indication of his more youthful men-ta, the mayor's wit did not desert him. He wondered during the campaign whether the voters who were enthusiastically singing his song would "love him in November as they did in May."

Miracle Didn't Happen

Perhaps unfortunately for the song writing profession, and certainly for the peace of mind of

James John Walker in this year of our Lord 1931, a Ninth ward Irish Catholic who was the son of an assemblyman could only break away from politics by a miracle. The miracle didn't happen.

And besides, the political platform was a good enough stage for any man with a sense of the dramatic,

ready tongue and a personality that warmed folks.

He was elected to the assembly in 1910, studied law at night and obtained a degree from the New York Law School in 1912, being admitted to the New York bar the same year.

Song writing was behind. Politics was ahead.

MEET THE MANAGER

BY JACK SORDS

Joseph V. McCarthy, new manager of the New York Yankees, doesn't believe the old adage that baseball "miracle men" bloom but once. By piloting the Yankees to their seventh pennant this season in the manner in which Joe hopes to prove he is right.

McCarthy is a freshman manager as far as the American League is concerned. But he has had five years in the National as Chicago Cub pilot. When Joe took hold of the Windy City Baby Bears in 1926 they were a last place outfit. He built them into a pennant winner by 1929 and when he resigned the reins late last season the Cubs were league champions with a chance of repeating.

That made McCarthy, in the eyes of the baseball world, a miracle man. Now that he has taken over the remnants of the old Miller Huggins championship Yankee team Joe is attempting to rebuild that outfit into another pennant winner. If he does he may be the first miracle man to repeat.

McCarthy is nearing his forty-sixth birthday. He was born in Franklin, Pa., April 21, 1885. He began playing ball with Bradford, Pa., in 1905. By 1908 he was in the American Association with Toledo. He played subsequently with Indianapolis, Wilkes-Barre, Buffalo, Brooklyn Federals, and Louisville. Joe became Louisville manager in 1919. After piloting the Colonels to two pennants he was asked to come to Chicago.

McCarthy's career is unique in that he has not played a single game in either the American or National League, but has managed clubs in both major circuits.

Appearing before Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith Tuesday morning, John Hopping, 58, of 1015 W. Second St., changed his plea to guilty to a charge of possessing liquor and was fined $450 and costs. NEW YORK, Mar. 31.—After starting the day from 1 to 4 points higher, the active industrial and utility stocks pushed ahead aggressively this morning for the best rally in nearly two weeks. Before giving up the fight, the bears hammered the oil stocks, driving Standard of New Jersey below 42 for a loss of nearly a point and the other leading standards and independents fractionally lower. A few of the rails were also under pressure, Southern Railway falling 3 points.

LEGION FORMS RELIEF UNIT TO ANTICIPATE SUDDEN DISASTER

An emergency relief unit, preliminary to a state-wide mobilization test, Monday, April 6 to determine how many Legionnaires can be assembled at a given point to render emergency service in the event of a sudden community disaster, has been formed by Joseph P. Foody Post, No. 55, American Legion.

Designed as a community service activity, similar units are being organized by every Legion post in Ohio and the state department hopes to better the mark established in 1929 by California, which assembled more than 15,000 men in a state-wide test.

The mobilization of as many as possible of the 215 members of Foody Post will be in answer to a call to be sounded some time April 6. State Legion headquarters will not disclose the form this call will take, whether by telegraph, telephone, radio or advance sealed orders, but it has been suggested that all local posts keep tuned in on Stations WLW at Cincinnati and WTAM at Cleveland during the evening hours since these stations will be used if the call is made by radio.

Regardless of the method used, Foody Post will be prepared to communicate instantly with every member of the post, and will strive to muster as many Legionnaires as possible at post hall in the basement of the Court House.

Ninety minutes after the state-wide alarm is sounded, the local post will report to state headquarters, stating the number of men assembled in thirty minutes, sixty minutes and ninety minutes. The same information will be given for members of Boy Scout troops. Under a plan suggested by the state department, Foody Post has perfected a skeleton organization of thirty-seven men, around which may be instantly gathered the entire man-power of the post should an emergency arise and its aid enlisted in behalf of a disaster-stricken community.

The purpose of the emergency unit is to perfect an advance set-up qualified to move quickly and efficiently to bridge the gap that exists between the time of a disaster and the arrival of agencies that are specially endowed for relief work. 'Services of the Legion, it is pointed out, would be most needed during the first few hours, because in a calamity of any consequence, state and national agencies will begin to move and will gradually take over the work.

Foody Post's relief unit will be headed by Dr. H. C. Messenger, Xenia Physician, as unit commander, with Paul Fuller, post commander, as unit first vice-commander, and Morris Sharp, former sheriff, as unit second vice-commander.

Captains for various companies have been selected as follows: Police Chief O. H. Cornwell, captain of the patrol company, which would be authorized to do police work, guard and such other duties as directed; C. W. Murphy, captain of the supply company, its duties being to prepare and distribute food to disaster victims and relief workers and render aid in housing and caring for the uninjured; Joseph Spiro, captain of the transportation company, which should establish a refugee camp, needed in case a large number of people were homeless; Walter Townsend, captain of the ambulance company, which would give such medical aid as is available, and provide hospitalization for the injured; Lorin Shepard, captain of the communications company, charged with the duty of collecting, disseminating and controlling information.

Each captain is empowered to appoint five lieutenants to serve under his direction. The patrol company is to have charge of Boy Scout troops and act in conjunction with the sheriff and police departments of the communities being served, while Scouts as well as the Scout commissioner and deputies also may come under the jurisdiction of the communications company.

The skeleton organization was completed with selection of Attorney Charles L. Darlington as captain of the personnel company, and he will have three lieutenants under him. All members of the post not included in the skeleton group are assigned to the personnel company for service in the various companies as needed. This company will have a list of all members, giving addresses and phone numbers both day and night.

Creation of an advisory committee, composed of the police chief, city manager, sheriff, National Guard commander, Red Cross and city health officer, and a finance committee consisting of M. L. Wolf, R. O. Wead and A. E. Faulkner, cashiers of Xenia's three banks, is also announced. Four local hospitals are designated in the project and four dressing stations are also listed in the scheme.

Legionnaires, it is explained, have taken interest in making available an organized body to cooperate with civil authorities in the event of an emergency because they are accustomed to act together and under direction, enabling them to meet a crisis with a swift, skilled efficiency born of war-time experience and training.

Scout Johnson, chairman of the Greene County camping committee for the Scout organization will visit each troop in the near future to present the camp idea and to suggest way and means whereby the boys can obtain funds to attend. The fee this year is $14 for two weeks $7.50 for one week. There will be no change in fees this year.

All troops in the area are now working for the first all Tecumseh Campers May 15 and 16 in Shawnee Park, Xenia. H. S. Goodrich, chairman, Springfield, declared that there was keen interest among the Scouts concerning the outcome of this event.

Those attending the executive board meeting from Xenia included: D. W. Cherry, Fred Lang, the Rev. Adrian G. Lebold and Glenn R. Johnson.

SERIES OF PASSION WEEK SERVICES IS STARTED AT CHURCH

Dr. W. N. Shank, pastor of the First M. E. Church, was speaker at the first of a series of noon day services in observance of Passion Week at the Presbyterian Church, Monday noon. Dr. Shank used as the basis of his talk the facts concerning Monday of Passion Week. The Rev. W. W. Foust presided and Mrs. Edwin Buck was at the piano.

The Rev. H. B. McElree, pastor of the Second U. P. Church, spoke Tuesday noon on the facts and lessons of Tuesday of Passion Week and the Rev. J. R. Lunsford presided. The Rev. W. H. Tilford will be the speaker Wednesday noon and the Rev. Russell Burkett will preside. The services are held from 11:45 a. m. to 12:15 p. m. and all interested persons are invited to attend.

Final plans are being made for Good Friday services Friday afternoon from 12 to 3 p. m. A number of business houses of the city will close during the services and it was announced Tuesday that county commissioners have decided to close the Court House offices between the hours of 12 to 3 while the services are being held.

CHILD FATALLY BURNED. MILLERSBURG, L. March 31.—Three-year-old Adrian Allen was dead today from burns received when her clothing became ignited while she was playing with matches in her home near Holmesville.

PHOTOS REVEAL STORY OF SCHOOL BUS TRAGEDY

Gradually the youthful survivors of the terrific blizzard which took the lives of five Colorado school children and Carl Miller, bus driver, are recovering from exposure and frost-bite. When the stalled schoolbus was found, near Towners, Colo., following two days' search, the living children, although half-frozen, were removed first to a ranch house then by airplane and automobile to a Lamar, Colo., hospital. The dead were taken to Holly, where a joint funeral for the five children and the bus driver, Carl Miller, was held. Miller died in a heroic attempt to bring aid to the children after he had watched his own little daughter die. Photos show, top, the bus, and below one of the survivors, Bryan Untiedt, 13, being lifted into an airplane.

INVESTIGATION OF FATAL CRASH FIXES CAUSE OF ACCIDENT

An investigation by Prosecutor Marcus McCallister and L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, Monday afternoon developed the fact Bert Zimmerman, 21, of 430 St. Paul Ave., Dayton, was the driver of an auto which overturned after crashing into a pole on the Dayton-Xenia Pike Sunday night, resulting in his death and the injury of four other young Dayton men.

Zimmerman, who died Monday morning in Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, lost control of the machine when the driving shaft became disconnected, authorities believe.

Conditions of the other four passengers in the car, three of whom are confined in St. Elizabeth Hospital in Dayton and one in McClellan Hospital, Xenia, were reported as somewhat improved Tuesday.

The injured are: Walter Krug,

16, of 1319 W. Fifth St., patient at McClellan Hospital, with a broken right leg; Charles Castle, 22, of 145 Nassau St., fractured hip; William Popp, 22, of 522 Lorain Ave., cuts, bruises and shock, and Victor Koenig, 22, of 557 St. Paul Ave.,

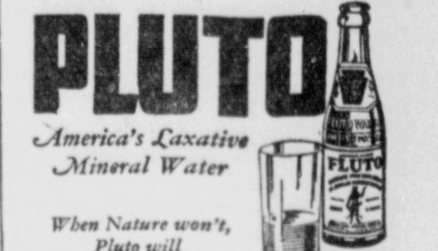

also suffering from shock and minor injuries. Zimmerman is said to have been pinned beneath the wrecked auto, the body of which was sheared from the chassis when the car struck a wire before smashing into the pole.

"Doctor recommended it," says Miller, of Camden, N. J.

Camden, N. J.—"More than fourteen years ago my doctor recommended Pluto Water to me as a preventive of constipation," says Louis H. Miller, local resident. "I knew it, of course, as a prompt relief measure, but this was a new use. Ever since that time, my whole family has used it, and we would not be without it for a minute. The treatment is simple—a small dose, in plain hot or cold water, each morning upon arising. It keeps the system always up to par, and helps ward off many serious complaints."

Pluto Mineral Water is Nature's own remedy. It acts promptly (thirty minutes to two hours) and cannot gripe or injure delicate tissues. Physicians recommend it because they know it is non-habit-forming. Pluto Water, bottled at French Lick Springs, Ind., is on sale at drug stores everywhere, and at fountains.

HUGO ECKENER SAYS REGULAR SCHEDULE PLANNED FOR 1933

cargo once a week from both the German and American terminals.

The LZ 129 will carry fifty passengers and thirty-five members of the crew. There will be a lifting capacity of eighteen tons, ten tons of which will be used in connection with passengers and freight.

With the lesson in mind of the inflated R101, which used hydrogen, Dr. Eckener said that helium would be used for inflation purposes. The American government has practically a monopoly on the supply of helium but Eckener said he expected little trouble in getting permission from the government to use the non-inflammable gas.

A further element of safety will be added in the form of Diesel engines using crude oil for fuel instead of gasoline. The development of the engines was expected by the time the LZ129 is completed, Eckener said.

"We expect to charge from $800 to $1,000 a passenger which is only fifty per cent more than the passage on an ocean express liner," said Eckener in an interview.

"We are quite sure that on the basis of these prices we will carry sufficient passengers to cover expenses and with our freight charges will make a profit in a short time."

"A dirigible trans-Atlantic line will be highly desirable for business men who wish to make a hurry trip abroad to transact their business personally."

"It takes from five to six days to go to Europe on an ocean liner and consequently many business men use the cables instead."

"On our dirigibles we can do it in two days eastward bound and two and one-half days westward bound."

"We will have a cruising speed of about 80 to 85 miles an hour."

Dr. Eckener said that he confidently expected that within ten years there would be two airship sailings a week from both sides of the ocean.

ties which have a population exceeding 250 to the square mile.

"Growth today is not in the cities, but outside the cities," Senator Robert A. Taft (R) of Cincinnati, sponsor of the bill, said. Despite insistent silence and a dissenting vote by Senator Thomas E. Williams (D) of Celina, the bill passed 23-1.

Senator Taft also succeeded in obtaining adoption of a second bill. It reduces membership of the state judicial council from nine to eight members, removing two of the three supreme court justices now members and adding a probate judge.

With three members of the supreme court of the state on the council, the council and the court would seldom have a different opinion on any question, Senator Taft complained.

The senate today had scheduled twenty-four senate measures for a place on today's and tomorrow's calendar.

Prison problems were booked for debate and roll call for this afternoon's session in consideration of three bills. One restores the statutory minimum for sentences to the Ohio Penitentiary, one creates a larger parole board and another provides for diminution of sentences of prisoners for good behavior.

A bill by Senator James G. Lowery (R) of New Concord, hopes to have the state director of education answerable to a state board of education instead of to the governor was scheduled for a vote Wednesday.

A bill by Senator John A. Lloyd (R) of Portsmouth, to prevent the use of fictitious names by advertisers in newspapers, unless publishers are supplied with the correct names, also was on Wednesday's calendar.

PLAN EIGHTH GRADE EXAMINATIONS FOR COUNTY ON MONDAY

The annual eighth grade examination for pupils of Greene County will be held next Monday, beginning at 9 a. m., at all of the high school centers: Beavercreek, Caesar Creek, Cedarville, Clifton, Jamestown, Jefferson, Ross, Spring Valley, Sugar Creek and Yellow Springs. Pupils in Xenia Twp., will take the examination at Central High School.

Each group will be in charge of some one other than the regular teacher. A score of fifty points will be possible in each of the four subjects: arithmetic, English, science and history. All pupils will be requested to use pen and ink, but no extra paper will be necessary since the tests will be provided in booklet form, with extra space for solution of problems.

For a number of years the uniform eighth grade examination has been prepared by the state department of education. It was originally known as the Boxwell examination, named after Representative Boxwell, from Warren County, who was author of the law. A few changes as follow have been made in the examinations. Science will include geography and hygiene and current events will also be a part of the science, history and language tests. The purpose of these tests is to place emphasis on all-around excellence in scholarship and it is hoped to stimulate pupils to do higher quality of work.

A general meeting of teachers and superintendents will be held in Central High School Monday at 5:30 p. m. to score all tests given in the county on that day.

MOTHER, SISTER, SWEETHEART, WITH SLAYER

HERE'S WHAT TO WEAR, MALES!

If You Would Keep Up With The Fashion, Better Consult Xenia Clothiers

SPRING styles being displayed by Xenia clothiers indicate there will be nothing gaudy about what the well-dressed men expect to wear. On the contrary, the trend is toward conservatism rather than fancy attire.

The male of the species plans to dress comfortably and neatly and will strive for that trim appearance and sensible comfort, both in cut and weight of the clothes he buys. If he desires to be what fashion dictators describe as well dressed, he will scorn the jazzy, floppy collegiate wearing apparel and will place more emphasis upon good-looking neatness, well-fitting clothes with well-chosen colors and well-proportioned lines and patterns, embodying the two-fold distinction of being easy to wear as well as easy to look at.

CLOTHIERS agree the preference this spring will be single-breasted suits, mostly two buttons with notched lapels and natural or slightly padded shoulders. However, it is generally admitted more double-breasted suits will be worn this spring than last, with six buttons.

Trousers, as a rule, will be slightly shorter, either hanging all the way to the shoes or just resting upon them, with the cuffs about eighteen inches in width. The quiet patterns will be the preferred ones and you should choose between plain or small weaves, although stripes, herringbones and pencil stripes will be popular also. For the less conservative males, a few plaids or checks are being shown. The favorite color is gray, including the light Cambridge gray, steel gray, blue gray and green gray. The browns come mostly in the tobacco or chocolate tones.

A majority of the men are expected to look with favor upon the English box top coats in the single-breasted designs with notched lapels. The prevailing style is tweed.

This spring the snap brim felt hats still retain their popularity with the medium square or tapered crowns and medium wide brims. In the neckwear department of dress, the small figured ties are given first ranking. This embraces florals, geometrics, checks, pin and polka dots. Next in point of favoritism come the striped ties, many preferring wide stripes in conservative colors. The tie colors are somewhat brighter but seldom dazzling.

As for shirts, the white broadcloth has first choice, with the soft collar attached, the collar points being slightly more than two to a little more than three inches long.

The same style in blue ranks a close second.

SHOE styles may be dismissed with the arbitrary decree that the calf shoe with the box toe reigns as the most popular, the preferred color being black with browns next.

Fashion arbiters would have you believe that in the way of hose, clocks—solid color backgrounds—are favored, but it is pointed out there are many small all-over designs, some stripes and plenty of plain colors for the discriminating male.

CHASE FIRE TRUCK; AUTOIST GETS FINE

Charged with violating a city ordinance passed in 1923 which makes it a misdemeanor punishable by a fine not to exceed $25 and costs for any person or persons convicted of following a fire truck responding to an alarm, Ervin South, 317 E. Second St., and Harold Murray, S. Columbus St., were arrested by police Monday night.

South was fined $3 and costs by Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith Tuesday morning and Murray was ordered to appear in court at 2 p. m. Saturday.

Police expect to strictly enforce provisions of this ordinance hereafter, it is announced.

PAIR SENTENCED TO BE EXECUTED

BUCYRUS, O., March 31.—Death in the electric chair was the fate that stared into the faces of Walter Ralls, 32, and his nephew, Blanton Ralls, 19, Crestline Negroes, today.

The pair was sentenced to electrocution yesterday in common pleas court here by Judge C. U. Ahl for the murder of Sheriff George Davenport during a raid of chicken thieves at Crestline recently. Defense counsel declared today they would carry the cases of the Negroes to the court of appeals.

The murder of Sheriff Davenport precipitated a political row that last week resulted in wholesale resignations of every Republican member of the sheriff's office and left Sheriff Fred Vollmer to run the office alone.

FAIRBANKS, MORSE STARTS PETITIONS AFTER DINNER HERE

A move to reawaken interest in the electric light and power situation and particularly in the proposed position of Fairbanks, Morse and Co., rival bidder for the local franchise and contracts, was launched at a dinner given by this company at Christ Church Parish House

Monday night, at which citizens and merchants were guests.

Circulation of petitions to force a referendum vote on the two ordinances initiated thirty days ago by the Citizens' Public Service Co., an Ohio subsidiary of Fairbanks, Morse and Co., was started Tuesday.

Within the next twenty days the signatures of 25 per cent of electors who voted at the last general election must be obtained to bring about a special election. The clerk of City Commission, within five days after demand for a special election has been filed, would be required to certify the request to the election board, after which the city charter provides for a special election not later than sixty days nor earlier than thirty days.

The position of Fairbanks, Morse and Co. regarding the light situation was explained by Attorney C. L. Darlington, and by three company officials.

During a three-course dinner Miss Eleanor McDonnell sang accompanied by her sister, Miss Mary McDonnell, at the piano.

PLAN TEMPERANCE MEETING APRIL 12

Dr. Mary Harris Armor, "the Joan of Arc of the temperance cause," will be speaker at a meeting at the First U. P. Church, Sunday evening, April 12, it is announced. The meeting is being sponsored by the Greene County Dry Federation, of which J. Carl Marshall is president.

Dr. Armour will speak on "A Woman's Word to the Wets." She has traveled extensively and has spoken before all kinds of gatherings.

Dr. William P. McGarey, Washington, D. C., assistant to the general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, will introduce Mrs. Armor and will give a preliminary address on "The Problem and the Prospects." The meeting is open to the public and there will be no admission charge, it is announced.

A THRILLING MYSTERY STORY + by MILES BURTON

That same day Dick traveled down to Wells. Alison was much better, but it was some days before it was judged wise to break the news of her father's death to her. Dick was entrusted with the task, and explained that he had been present when Dr. Weatherleigh was killed in a motor car accident. Alison, in her weak state, was almost prostrated by the shock. Dick, caring only that she should be spared the revelations which must follow, took the doctor in charge of the case into his confidence, and begged him to prescribe a long sea voyage.

Consequently, as soon as she was convalescent, she left England in company with her Aunt Edith, on a six months' trip. She was thus spared the details of the coming trial, one of the most sensational of recent years. The man known as Arthur volunteered to give information, and, when it had been established that he had taken no active part in the murder of Inspector Brooks and Pussie Herdige, he was allowed to turn King's evidence.

His story covered a series of robberies extending over many years, of which the majority of the proceeds were never recovered. The gang had been very strictly disciplined, operating under exact and minute orders. One or two of its earlier members had, after certain acts of disobedience, simply disappeared. Arthur either could not or would not say how. This had not been without its effect on the remainder, who found, in addition, that the distribution of profits kept them in considerable affluence.

Inspector Brooks, following two members of the gang from the Margate Jetty, had been in his turn shadowed by their confederates. He had been allowed to overhear a conversation arranged for his benefit, in which he had been given a hint that the Hardy diamonds were hidden in the disused lead workings in the Mendips, but were to be removed immediately. He had set off at once, but Ted, Ben, and two other members of the gang had driven down in a fast car, and were ready for him on his arrival. He was ambushed, overpowered, and flung into the lead cell from which Dick had so narrowly escaped.

Pussie Herdige might have been allowed to live, had he not been unwise enough to express in public his belief that it had been the Funny Toff's gang which had relieved him of his lawful wage. He knew that the police were shadowing him, and he had gratefully accepted the offer of a barge to him on his barge unloading things had blown over. An appointment was made for him to embark at the steps by the Margate Jetty. Ben was waiting for him, he was taken on board the motorboat, and conveyed to Coldharbour Point. The Rosalie was already lying there. As he ascended her side he was put down into the river and allowed to drown.

The identity of the Funny Toff had remained a mystery throughout. Even Ted and Ben, the principal members of the gang, had never met him face to face. Dr. Weatherleigh must have studied the underworld very closely, for these two had received letters making appointments at an empty house in the country, where the conditions of their employment were explained to them by a man in a dark room. Within a week they were compromised to such an extent that they would not have dared to lay information even if they had desired to do so. It was through their agency that the remaining members had been recruited. These two were sentenced to death, while the remainder of the gang were awarded varying terms of penal servitude. The day after the trial ended, Arthur was found murdered in Wapping, with a knife thrust through his heart. It was believed to be the work of the lorry driver, who had not been captured with the rest, and was never traced.

Dick and Alison were married

ANEMIA IN PIGS

A condition corresponding to anemia in humans is commonly observed in suckling pigs 3 to 6 weeks of age, and, owing to the animal's peculiar jerky methods of breathing, the disease is frequently called "thumps".

The disease is caused by a lack of blood-forming elements in the sow's milk and is most common in pigs that are kept indoors. The harm produced by long periods of indoor housing of suckling pigs does not appear to be from the lack of sunshine, but from the inability of the pig to obtain substances from the soil, such as iron and copper, that assist in the formation of blood.

According to Dr. B. H. Edgington of the Ohio Experiment Station's Disease Control Laboratory at Reynoldsburg, the first symptom noticed is usually a lack of vigor. The pigs may be plump and well developed but tire easily and show fatigue on slight exercise. The mucous membrane of the mouth and eyes becomes pale, and sudden death may occur in anemic pigs that are still in good flesh. In the more prolonged course of the disease the pigs become thin and weak, the hair coat rough, and the skin wrinkled. A condition of "thumpy" or labored breathing frequently is present.

Post-mortem examination of the affected pigs shows an enlarged flabby heart with accumulations of fluid in the thoracic and abdominal cavities. The liver may be enlarged and usually shows a spotted condition. The blood is pale and the muscles and internal organs have a pallid appearance.

BERLIN GOING DRY

BERLIN, March 31. — Berlin must become dry from 3 a. m. to 6 a. m. A decree by its police president forbids the sale of liquor during those hours. This measure, which aims at suppressing rowdiness in the capital, roused a hot protest on the part of the saloon owners who claimed their customers were either people working till 3 o'clock in restaurants, or green-grocers and others who start work in the market halls very early and badly need a drink to fight down the night chill.

YOUNGEST CHIEF OF POLICE BOASTED BY CALIFORNIA TOWN

By WALLACE X. RAWLES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, March 31.—Lynwood, a suburb of Los Angeles, boasts the youngest chief of police in the United States.

He is J. M. Bennett and he is 21 years old.

Acting as desk sergeant for Lynwood's police department Bennett in March was surprised to learn the city council had named him to head the force.

Bennett assumed command immediately and at once started a campaign against reckless driving which has caused several deaths in Lynwood recently.

His appointment was received with delight by hundreds of citizens when Bennett promised an efficient police department that would co-operate with Los Angeles city police, county and state officials.

Bennett went to Lynwood from Cedar Rapids, Iowa. He started his public career as a Lynwood city fireman five years ago but transferred to the police department a year later.

As soon as he joined the fire department his ability was recognized and when he switched to the police department he was named by Police Chief Thomas Millard to be desk secretary. He became the department's first desk sergeant and was thrown into contact daily with many leading citizens responsible today for his new honor.

Bennett is married and has a small daughter.

The youngest man previously to hold such an honor was a Texas sheriff, age 24, and at one time Longmont, Colo., had a police chief named Rey Bennett who was in his early twenties.

The Theater

Just twenty years ago this month, a tornado of a man with a cork-smearing face bounced out on the stage of the Winter Garden in New York and went into a "single" he had been doing in vaudeville.

The house went wild over the stranger, but since the hour was past midnight, and the reviewers were all snoring lustily under their coverlets, Al Jolson awoke to no Byronic fame in the morning.

He had sold himself to the public, however. He was an entertainer filled with a curious, persistent flame; a pile driver and humming bird all evening, who would blandly announce: "You ain't heard nothing yet" and then proceed with unwearied gaiety to do twice as much as before.

Last week Jolson came to New York and his great public after five long years in the movies—a migration that earned him the credit for "selling" the talkies in those early days of experimentation when they seemed doomed to bluish unseen.

To honor their prodigal star, the Messrs. Shubert and Morris Gest took the spacious but intimate Nora Hayes Theater on the roof of the Forty-fourth St. and recast it in the scarlet and black lacquer semblance of a continental night club. It was the perfect setting for Jolson. Playing the proprietor of "The Wonder Bar"—as the German importation is called—he made the place his own. He scrambled into loges, rushed up and down aisles, shook, cordially the hands of bewildered first nighters. You felt that you had never seen a real master of ceremonies before.

Weaving somewhat timidly around this glib figure was a pale little plot, employing the faintly familiar characters of the bored, rich American matron, the sleek, greedy, gigolo, the harassed husband and the jealous Spanish dancer. Rex O'Malley was a neatly sinister gigolo, Wanda Lyon was blonde and unbelievable as the matron, Vernon Steele played the husband with assurance and Trini was the dancing girl. In addition there were Patsy Kelly and Al Segal, and several Albertina Rasch girls.

Critics noted Jolson is a suaver, mellower fellow than he was before the war. His bubbling, mocking attack is today more gracious, more easy, in a word, more mature. Audiences, including the bright young people of the post-war period, will be content that Al Jolson is back and brilliant.

Sam Hardy and George Andre Beranger have been cast in "Good Gracious, Annabelle," in support of Thomas Meighan and Jeanette MacDonald. William Holden and Ruth Warren are also among the featured players in this picture. "Always Goodbye," Elissa Landi's second American picture, has gone into production with John Garrick as leading man.

"Uncle Steve" Phillips, venerable Lebanon, O., horseman, celebrated his 89th birthday Friday and was besieged with telegrams and other messages of congratulation from all parts of the country.

"Uncle Steve," who is 89 years "young"—not "old," is said to be recovering nicely from an operation and providing his health continues to improve, is counting upon enjoying another campaign in the bike.

Still somewhat weak, he has sent his four-year-old trotter, Frederick McKinney, 2:11 1/4, to William "Doc" McMillan, popular London, O. reinsman, to be conditioned for his coming stake engagements, but he is figuring upon being in the sulky himself when the season opens.

Last fall "Uncle Steve" drove his trotter in the three-year-old event at the Hamilton fair, winning with him in straight heats and giving him a mark of 2:11 1/4.

While on the general subject of harness racing, it is said that Joe Hagler, popular Xenia trainer, has had to change his plans about racing Ray Henley, 2:08 pacer, against the bears of the Bay State Circuit meets.

It seems that his father, H. M. Hagler, who owns this sensational wiggler, has informed Joe that he wants him raced at the Ohio meetings this summer in order that he can sit in the stands and watch him perform without going so far from home to experience this pleasure.

Therefore, Joe, bowing to the wishes of his elder, has agreed to do most of his campaigning this year within the confines of the Buckeye State.

Adoption of the barrier system by members of the Southwestern Ohio Fair Circuit at forthcoming meets this year is reported to have been recommended by the circuit committee which recently met at Troy to consider the plan.

This system, advocated by Steve Phillips, nationally known Xenia starting judge, at the recent annual meeting of circuit officials in this city, may therefore be introduced locally for the first time at the Greene County Fair's shortship circuit meet in August, as well as at the twelve other county fairs embraced by the circuit.

The Xenia starter, incidentally, has perfected a barrier device of his own, with which he has been experimenting at the Xenia fairgrounds and which he is convinced should answer the purpose and may revolutionize the harness horse sport in this country.

Drawn taught across the track, the wire when released, springs straight across in front of the buggies and zip—they're off—thus eliminating a great amount of tire-some scoring and other irritating delays which have been one of the drawbacks of the harness game as compared with running races.

Thanks to Steve's influence, the barrier system will be given trials almost everywhere in Ohio this season and the local starter will have carved a permanent niche for himself in the annals of the sport in this country providing the plan becomes a permanent fixture.

Leroy Wones, who at one time conducted a sport column in The Gazette, has accepted an offer to become sports editor of the Scioto Gazette at Chillicothe Monday, it is learned.

Roy formerly wrote a column for this paper called "Sports Broadcasts from Station WONES," and is as thoroughly familiar with all varieties of sports as the average persons is—or should be—with his A. B. C's.

The Krippendorf-Dittman Shoe Co. bowling team, leader of the City League, boosted its advantage to seven and one-half games by making a clean sweep of the three-game series with the second-place American Legion, while the Carroll-Binder Co. took three straight games from the Central Acceptance Corp. in a league double-header Friday night. STEVE PERFECTS STARTING BARRIER

Here, in miniature, is the barrier device perfected by Steve Phillips, widely known Xenia starting judge, who plans to install it at various tracks where the system will be given a trial at Ohio shortship circuit meets this year.

Of course, since the barrier is stretched entirely across the track, the line is much longer than is shown in the above picture, but you can readily perceive how the contrivance will operate. The trotters or pacers, as the case may be, will line up back of the taut wire and when the starter releases the "trigger" the line shoots directly across the track in front of the wigglers.

Steve has been experimenting with his device at the Xenia fairgrounds and believes his barrier will come into widespread use.

FOUR AQUATIC RECORDS AT HOME SHATTERED AS ROOSEVELT WINS

Four existing pool records at the O. S. and S. O. Home were shattered in a scholastic swimming meet at the local institution Friday afternoon in which the crack Dayton Roosevelt team took the measure of the cadet swimmers by a margin of 35 to 20.

The winner of the meet, however, was not decided until the last two events on the program, the 100 yd. free style and the 100 yd. backstroke, McKinley took the other first place for the cadets by winning the forty-yard free style race. Other point winners for the Home were Rhodes in diving—second to Graham, former state champion—L. Tyrell in the forty-yard event and Trumphour in the

DEPUTY KILLS YOUTH, SELF

PLAIN CITY, O., March 28.—After slaying George Allan Leggett, 19, former Marysville High School football player, during what authorities said was a drinking party, Thomas Beach, a deputy sheriff of Union County, shot and killed himself at his home here today.

Authorities expressed the belief that the double tragedy was the outcome of a tiff between Leggett and the deputy sheriff.

Leggett was shot and killed, authorities said, at the home of Mrs. Nell Butler, where Beach and several other men were gathered. Witnesses to the shooting told Sheriff William Rauch that Beach drew a weapon and fired point-blank at the youth. The shot pierced Leggett's abdomen.

Beach shortly afterward returned to his own home where Sheriff Rauch, who had been informed of the affair, sought him in an effort to learn the details of the shooting. The sheriff said he found Beach in bed. As he entered the room, he said, Beach reached for a revolver and, before he could be stopped, shot himself through the head.

FIVE CHILDREN DIE FROM COLD

LAMAR, Colo., March 28.—Five school children were frozen to death and eighteen other children severely frost bitten. It was revealed today when a rescue party discovered a school bus stuck in a snowdrift south of Towner, near the Colorado-Kansas line.

The bus had been stuck in the snow since Thursday.

A posse organized at Tribune, Kan., today was searching for Carl Miller, driver of the bus. He supposedly abandoned the vehicle to seek assistance.

All of the children were from Towner. The dead are John Stonebraker, Alice Unid, Mary Hufaker, Alfred Johnson and Mary Miller, all between 10 and 14 years old. The bodies were taken to Holly, Colo.

The other children, expected to recover, were taken here and to Eads, Colo., for treatment.

Meantime, highways throughout southeastern Colorado remained virtually impassable as a result of the blizzard that has raged since early Wednesday.

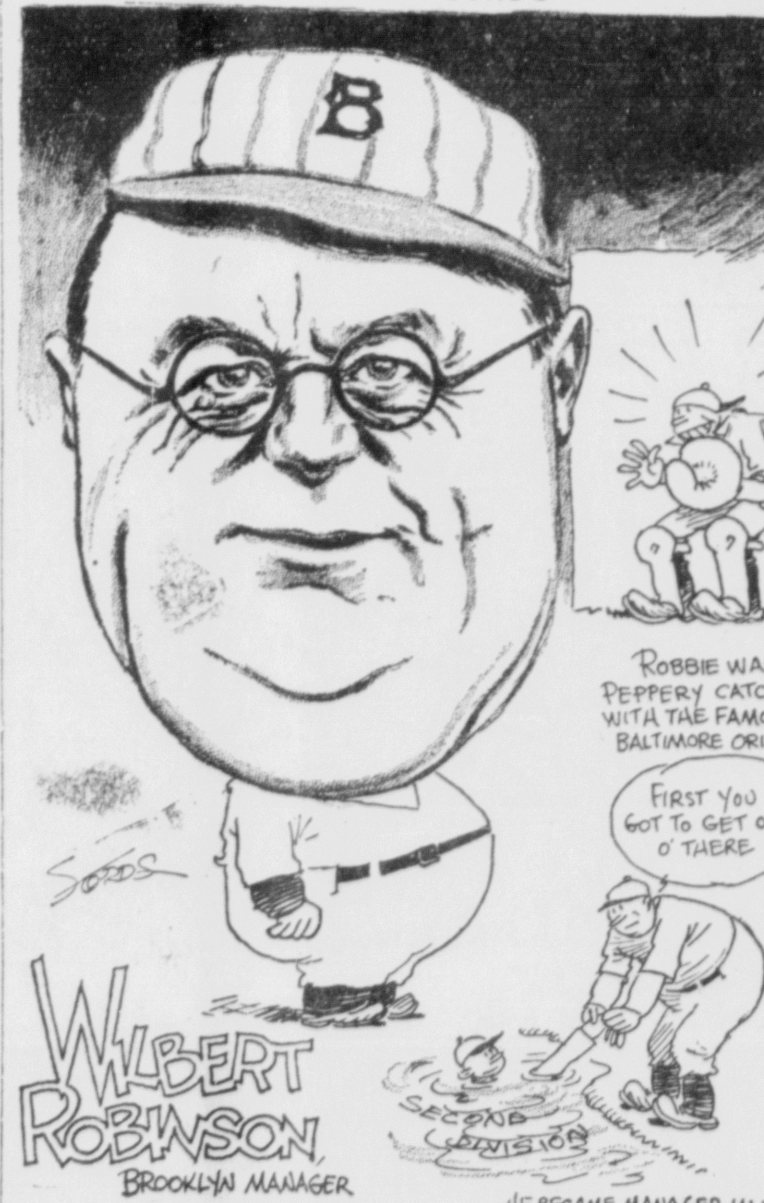

NEIL HOUSE SOLD TO CLEVELAND MAN

COLUMBUS, O., March 28.—At a price of $1,000,000 Julian W. Tyler of Cleveland, secretary of the Neil House Bondholders' Protective Committee, today bought the lease held on the Neil House, well-known Columbus hotel.

The bondholders protective committee, of which Tyler is secretary, owns 89 per cent of the hotel's first mortgage bonds. The property valuation of the Neil House is $1,500,000.

An organization has been completed for the operation of the hotel, Tyler said, as soon as the sale this morning is confirmed. Possession will be taken about April 1, it was expected.

MEET THE MANAGER BY JACK SORDS

He became manager in 1914 and immediately started the Orioles on the upgrade

Wilbert Robinson, ponderous potentate of the Brooklyn Dodgers (sometimes) and with reason referred to as the Brooklyn Buff, has his eye on that old National League pennant this year.

And Uncle Wilbert isn't just blowing bubbles, either, when he talks flag this year.

Uncle Wilbert has a mighty nice looking ball club.

It's about time Uncle Wilbert cracked through with a winner. He hasn't dined on world series dough since 1920 and a 10-year depression isn't relished by the best of baseball men.

Uncle Wilbert—to become historical—came into this vale of last place clubs in Hudson, Mass., on June 2, 1867. As a sprightly youth of 18 he enrolled with the Haverhill, Mass., baseball club as a catcher and third baseman.

The next season Robinson found himself with the Philadelphia Nationals. After four years in Philly he went to the Baltimore Orioles as a catcher and succeeded John McGraw as manager in 1899.

STARS OF RADIOLAND

For old-time melodrama, replete with action, hair-raising thrills, asides, the villain and all the rest of the nineteenth century stage features, Hank Simmons' Show Boat company holds first place in the radio world. And with the weekly drama is the colorful setting of the Mississippi show boat. Hank Simmons runs the show, addresses the audience between acts and usually has an outstanding role in the production as well.

GOVERNOR WHITE MADE BOY SCOUT

COLUMBUS, O., March 28.—Recently made an honorary Indian chief, Governor George White today had the additional distinction of being an honorary tenderfoot in the Boy Scouts of America.

Tenderfoot investiture ceremonies were conducted for the governor and 1100 police Scouts during the Ohio Area Scout Council's annual two-day circus. More than 2,000 Scouts attended the meeting and saw the governor presented with an emblem of his acceptance.

GIRL SCOUTS of America

The hike planned by Troop No. 3, Girl Scouts of America, for Monday afternoon has been postponed because of the uncertainty of the weather.

MARCH LION ROARS; RAIN SWEEPS CITY

Forerunner of a cold wave expected to hit Xenia and vicinity Saturday, the 1931 March lion shook his shaggy mane and emitted a roar which took the form of a thirty-mile wind, accompanied by a driving rainstorm, that swept over the city Friday night.

Contrary to predictions of continued rain, changing to snow, Saturday, the sun broke through the overcast skies early in the day, but the weather forecasters were not to be denied and indications in the afternoon were that their predictions would bear belated fruit.

Easter Fashion Parade Sunday To Be Colorful

EASTER—that day looked forward to by women when they may don their new Spring attire—is only a few days away and Xenia's ready-to-wear stores are bedecked with an array of new coats, suits, dresses and accessories, everything to suit a feminine heart.

The outstanding feature noticed in women's apparel this season is the wide use of contrasting colors in such a manner as to present a pleasing picture. The contrasting color idea is carried out extensively in dresses and jackets.

Jewel crepes and spongy wools are the leading materials being shown in coats. Blacks and browns, with a few greens and tans, are the leading colors but a new shade introduced this year in coats is "skipper" blue, which is a shade lighter than navy. Coats are soft and loose and give a wrappy effect and are slightly bloused above the waistline. Collars are gracefully draped and belts on nearly all of the coats shown are crushed.

Suits are to be worn more this Spring than last and are being shown in the same colors as the coats. A new shade introduced in suits this year is bandanna, a light yellow-red. The color contrast may be brought into the suit ensemble for the blouse worn may be of a contrasting shade to blend with the suit. Lapin and sheared lapin jackets are popular this Spring and these may further emphasize the color contrast.

Dresses will be similar to those worn last year only there are a few points that are different this season. Pleats, both box and fine, are taking the place of flares. Sleeves are to be short or three-quarter length. The color contrast was noticed in one frock where it was light above the waistline and of a darker contrasting shade below. New this Spring are the "Sunday night supper" frocks which serve a double purpose. One of these attractive frocks shown at a local store is of all-over eyelet embroidery, in a pale pink shade. The dress is form-fitting and is ankle length. It is worn over a silk slip of a deeper pink shade. With the dress one wears a short taffeta jacket, the same shade as the slip. The jacket may be removed for dancing and the dress serves the same purpose as a formal evening gown.

Hat styles are different this year. In that the brims are wider and the crowns are lower. Hats are worn farther back on the head and to be stylish the hair should show. Bakous, Panamas, finer Panama weaves, some hair braids and rough straws are the straws being shown. In shoes colored kids are fashionable and blue seems to be the outstanding color although blonde shoes are also popular. Black, of course, is good as always, but snake-skin and lizard skin shoes are "taboo" this season.

Accessories play an important part in milady's costume and should not be overlooked. Gloves are wrinkly at the wrist and tend to widen toward the top. They are longer and if necessary long gloves may be worn over long sleeves to give them the appearance of short sleeves. There is not much change in hose this year only more silk mesh hose are being shown and seem to be gaining in popularity. The color contrast may further be brought into the ensemble in the use of jewelry and flowers.

The little miss has not been overlooked in the Spring array. The color contrast is evident here, too, but children's clothes are getting away from pastel shades. Effective contrasts in color can be brought about by the use of yokes in the little miss' dress. Jacket costumes are popular for children this year and the bolero jacket seems to be leading in the jacket styles for the little girls.

If the weather man is kind and Easter Sunday dawns bright and clear Xenia streets will present a gala appearance when milady steps out in her new costume.

And the other day the lucky playwright, still a bit dazed with it all, confined, with a shake of his shiny, bald head:

"I wrote it because I wanted to. Sort of for fun. Never did get such a kick out of writing anything before. I really hardly believed it would ever be produced. There were so many scenes—and it was such an unusual play. But, well, look at the way it's going. Funny business—this writing plays. I wouldn't have had the nerve to ask anyone to put on a play like it."

Still a Bachelor
Connelly is tall and well built, bald, gray eyed, and has a genial smile. He was born in McKeesport, Pa., Dec. 13, 1890. He still is a bachelor, and lives with his mother in a pleasant apartment in West 57th street.

Now he is surrounded by a staff of servants, secretary n' everything. Not so before. It was a long breath between breaks for the writer. His other plays, some written in collaboration, were: "Merton of the Movies," "Dulcy," "The Wisdom Tooth" (which, by the way, he says is his favorite brain offspring), "To the Ladies," and the musical "Helen of Troy, N. Y."

He is amused that who's who this year credits him with "The Butler and Egg Man." He had nothing whatsoever to do with it. His erstwhile collaborator, George S. Kaufmann, wrote it.

What He Doesn't Like
Connelly has several pet aversions.

One of the greatest is taxicabs. When he goes a-riding he passes most of his time tapping on the window, telling the driver to please slow up, and asking him if he thinks he is going to a fire. The reason is that he crashed into another car in a fog on Long Island a couple of years ago and had to walk a mile in the darkness to find help. Fortunately no one was seriously injured. But it left him with a complex.

The busy celebrity has grown very jumpy since the fuss started. This interview with him saw him part of the time in his arm chair, then walking the floor, or in a straight chair, or standing up with his hat crushed on his head, swinging a cane. Between jumps we learned:

"I like to sleep late and can't. Not getting nearly enough sleep. Must get more. Go all to blooey some of these days. Hate obligations and having to keep appointments. Bunch of women waiting for me to speak at some darn hotel now. Don't want to go."

Likes Lighter Writers
"I'm fond of Tom Hood. Collect old editions of him. Great stuff. My special interest is the lighter writers of the nineteenth century. I lunch at the Algonquin every day of my life. I'll miss it when I go to London in a few days to direct William Bolitho's new play. It hasn't a name yet. From there I'm going to Germany to get material for a new play."

"You know I was a newspaper man in Pittsburgh for eight years. On all the papers there—reporting. I went to school at Trinity Hall, Washington, Pa. Had a funny column on the old Times in Pittsburgh, too. Later contributed verse and articles to magazines."

Quite a joiner. Belongs to Authors League of America, Players, Coffee House, Dutch Treat, and other clubs. If you ever think you see him on the street, look for his cane. If he hasn't got it, it isn't Marc Connelly.

NEW YORK, March 31.—Pittsburgh boy makes good in big city.

Marc Connelly's "The Green Pastures" is one of the best and most successful plays that has hit the Great White Way in years.

"The Green Pastures" is a Negro folk lore story of the Bible, with God coming to earth to chat with his people. All the characters are colored.

And the other day the lucky playwright, still a bit dazed with it all, confined, with a shake of his shiny, bald head:

"I wrote it because I wanted to. Sort of for fun. Never did get such a kick out of writing anything before. I really hardly believed it would ever be produced. There were so many scenes—and it was such an unusual play. But, well, look at the way it's going. Funny business—this writing plays. I wouldn't have had the nerve to ask anyone to put on a play like it."

Still a Bachelor
Connelly is tall and well built, bald, gray eyed, and has a genial smile. He was born in McKeesport, Pa., Dec. 13, 1890. He still is a bachelor, and lives with his mother in a pleasant apartment in West 57th street.

Now he is surrounded by a staff of servants, secretary n' everything. Not so before. It was a long breath between breaks for the writer. His other plays, some written in collaboration, were: "Merton of the Movies," "Dulcy," "The Wisdom Tooth" (which, by the way, he says is his favorite brain offspring), "To the Ladies," and the musical "Helen of Troy, N. Y."

He is amused that who's who this year credits him with "The Butler and Egg Man." He had nothing whatsoever to do with it. His erstwhile collaborator, George S. Kaufmann, wrote it.

What He Doesn't Like
Connelly has several pet aversions.

One of the greatest is taxicabs. When he goes a-riding he passes most of his time tapping on the window, telling the driver to please slow up, and asking him if he thinks he is going to a fire. The reason is that he crashed into another car in a fog on Long Island a couple of years ago and had to walk a mile in the darkness to find help. Fortunately no one was seriously injured. But it left him with a complex.

The busy celebrity has grown very jumpy since the fuss started. This interview with him saw him part of the time in his arm chair, then walking the floor, or in a straight chair, or standing up with his hat crushed on his head, swinging a cane. Between jumps we learned:

"I like to sleep late and can't. Not getting nearly enough sleep. Must get more. Go all to blooey some of these days. Hate obligations and having to keep appointments. Bunch of women waiting for me to speak at some darn hotel now. Don't want to go."

Likes Lighter Writers
"I'm fond of Tom Hood. Collect old editions of him. Great stuff. My special interest is the lighter writers of the nineteenth century. I lunch at the Algonquin every day of my life. I'll miss it when I go to London in a few days to direct William Bolitho's new play. It hasn't a name yet. From there I'm going to Germany to get material for a new play."

"You know I was a newspaper man in Pittsburgh for eight years. On all the papers there—reporting. I went to school at Trinity Hall, Washington, Pa. Had a funny column on the old Times in Pittsburgh, too. Later contributed verse and articles to magazines."

Quite a joiner. Belongs to Authors League of America, Players, Coffee House, Dutch Treat, and other clubs. If you ever think you see him on the street, look for his cane. If he hasn't got it, it isn't Marc Connelly.

PHOTOS SHOW HOW "KILLER" BURKE FIXED NOSE

Held in an escape-proof cell, Fred Burke, wanted for some 20 murders, is kept under heavy guard at St. Joseph, Mich., awaiting trial for the slaying of a policeman.

Accessories play an important part in milady's costume and should not be overlooked. Gloves are wrinkly at the wrist and tend to widen toward the top. They are longer and if necessary long gloves may be worn over long sleeves to give them the appearance of short sleeves. There is not much change in hose this year only more silk mesh hose are being shown and seem to be gaining in popularity. The color contrast may further be brought into the ensemble in the use of jewelry and flowers.

The little miss has not been overlooked in the Spring array. The color contrast is evident here, too, but children's clothes are getting away from pastel shades. Effective contrasts in color can be brought about by the use of yokes in the little miss' dress. Jacket costumes are popular for children this year and the bolero jacket seems to be leading in the jacket styles for the little girls.

If the weather man is kind and Easter Sunday dawns bright and clear Xenia streets will present a gala appearance when milady steps out in her new costume.

And the other day the lucky playwright, still a bit dazed with it all, confined, with a shake of his shiny, bald head:

"I wrote it because I wanted to. Sort of for fun. Never did get such a kick out of writing anything before. I really hardly believed it would ever be produced. HORSES RUN AWAY

MOUNDSVILLE, Pa., March 31.—Russell Carter can testify that not only is transportation still carried on by horses, but that occasionally the almost forgotten "run-away" act is still performed. Carter sustained the loss of his left forefinger when a run-away mule team dragged him for several yards with his hands entangled in the reins before he could extricate himself.

SPRING IS NIGH! GEORGE IS BACK

NEW YORK knows Spring can't be far away, for George McManus, the amiable creator of "Bringing Up Father," which is published daily in The Gazette, has come back.

McManus' return from California each spring has become one of those harbingers of milder days that the birds watch and the tulips consult before they venture into the chilly atmosphere of Manhattan winters.

"When the orange trees begin to bud," McManus explains, "I get the itch to go back to the scenes where Jiggs and Maggie first came into being. So here I am, on schedule."

As he approached the Empire State Building, new "tallest building in the world," completed since he last was in New York, McManus remarked, referring to a recent experience of Jiggs: "I'm glad Jiggs didn't get married on a beam on the top of that place. He might never have gotten down."

McManus expects to combine the fine arts of living and playing with the tremendous amount of work necessary to the daily production of "Bringing Up Father."

AUTOIST HURT WHEN MACHINES COLLIDE

Bruce J. Leveck, N. Detroit St., escaped with a cut over the left eye when his coupe collided with another auto on the Jamestown Pike Monday afternoon, overturned on its side, slid along the highway nearly seventy-five feet and then righted itself.

The Leveck auto struck a roadster driven by Harold Sanders, Lower Bellbrook Pike. The front of the roadster was damaged and Mrs. Sanders suffered from shock. She was taken to the office of Dr. R. L. Haines, Jamestown.

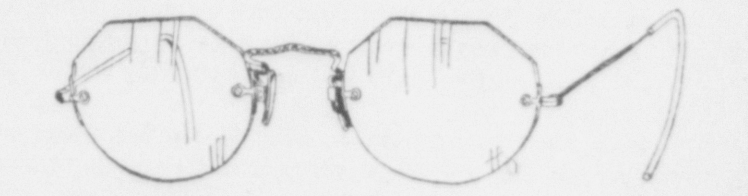

L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, learned the Sanders car passed a horse and buggy parked off the north side of the highway just as Leveck's machine approached from the opposite direction.

Leveck applied the brakes suddenly, throwing the rear end of his coupe into the roadster. Leveck's car was badly damaged.

Members of Patrol 4, Blue Bird Troop No. 2, Girl Scouts of America, will entertain members of the other patrols of the troop at an "April Fool" party Wednesday at 12 o'clock noon. The party will be held in Post Hall, Court House, and each one attending is asked to bring a covered dish.

TREE CATCHES FIRE

When children in the neighborhood, playing with matches, set fire to a dead maple tree at Center and Charles Sts., Monday night at 9:45 o'clock, they caused more excitement than they had anticipated. It was necessary to summon the enla Fire Department to extinguish the blaze, which was the thirty-sixth alarm for 1931. No damage resulted.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Children, obey your parents in all things: for this is well pleasing unto the Lord. Fathers, provoke not your children to anger, lest they be discouraged.—Colossians, iii, 20, 21.

AROUSING PUBLIC OPINION

Someone asked recently whether an American public did not alter all want gangland activity with its racketeering, violence, bloodshed, and all the trimmings.

The answer seems to be pretty definitely contained in the rather consistent news items from Chicago lately, all of which tell the story of the apparent losing fight of gangdom against the constituted agencies of law and order.

Chicago evidently is slowly but inexorably flattening out organized enemies of society. Subterfuges and legal technicalities, for so long gangland's air-tight defense against punishment, appears to be melting away in the white heat of an aroused public sentiment.

The American people are frequently slow to anger; often tolerant, amused by the bad-boy escapades of a portion of its citizenship, and is frequently mistaken for callous indifference or weak-kneed apathy. And then suddenly the public gets enough and the bad boy with his swagger and braggadocio feels the heavy hand of outraged society.

The American people do not want commercialized vice and crime, which is gangland's only reason for existence. The early history of the West, when lawlessness rode roughshod over peace-abiding citizenship and for a time apparently was in supreme control, recalls the complete rout of these criminal elements, by an aroused citizenship. History repeats, and while things are done differently today the great American love of fair play and justice will have its day.

IMPROVING BUSINESS

So many reports of improving business are coming in, that it would seem as if the pessimists and doubters must at last be convinced. Steel production has long been considered one of the best measurements of the rise and fall of trade and steel production has now increased for 11 consecutive weeks, and the mills at this writing are operating at 91 per cent of capacity. As there is a tendency for such plants to keep increasing their capacity, this probably means a considerably larger volume than 57 per cent production would have meant a few years ago.

The plant capacity of most of our industries is much in excess of the demand for the product. A 75 per cent production in any industry usually indicates a large degree of activity, and it would seem as if steel production would get up to that point before long.

A slow but steady recovery indicates a healthy rise from depression, which is not built merely on speculative hopes. The country showed in the spring of 1930, a quite active recovery from the speculative smash of 1929, but it was too abrupt to last.

Now it is evident that whatever recovery develops is not created because speculators are bidding up stocks, or producers are banking on guesses. The speculators have been much discouraged for some time, and for the most part are waiting for business to show prosperity before they risk any more money.

When an industry expands now, after the prolonged period of slow business, it is almost invariably because dealers are finding themselves short of the things the people want to buy, so that they are sending in actual orders for new goods. That kind of gain is something substantial on which people can bank. We can expect to see much more of it in Ohio before midsummer.

AMERICA A FRIEND

Many enterprises of other nations needing to be financed send representatives to America, a land friendly to worthy causes in the interests of humanity. Recently Rabindranath Tagore of India came seeking our interests in the Hindu people; his main interest was in a far sighted plan for the reconstruction of Indian villages; he also sought to raise $125,000 to finance the cause of Dr. Harry Trimbles, who will return with the poet to direct Tagore's Institute of Rural Health situated at Santiniketan, 100 miles west of Calcutta, where Tagore established an international university thirty years ago investing $250,000 of his own fortune.

Tagore at one time said that he did not need Christ to get along in this world, but he was very willing to have the American Friends Service Commission support his campaign for funds; he was ready to use the fine Christian spirit of America to further his interests in India. Perhaps some day he will find himself in a position like Julian the apostate, who in his last moment cried out "O Gallien, Thou hast conquered."

STUDENT SOLICITORS

Many young men are trying to obtain money for an education, by selling articles from door to door. One naturally feels sympathy with any young man who is ambitious enough to earn money for an education. It is out of that spirit that men have gone on to success and achievement.

Such young fellows however, often need advice. Sometimes the kind of education they seek is not the kind best suited to their needs. They conceive the idea that if they can only graduate from some college, their path to success is easy. But that is not the case. The college diploma is no meal ticket.

Boys who try to earn money in this way should not make an appeal that is practically a request for charity. If they try to persuade people to buy something they do not want to help them through college, they might just as well ask for a direct gift of money.

Some of these boys approach people with a long prepared rigmarole of a speech prepared by the sales managers of some agency, which is supposed to handle a possible buyer very tactfully, and gradually break down his "sales resistance." More frequently however, this approach has so much tedious circumlocution, and it takes so much time to listen to it, that the possible buyer is irritated and prejudiced.

Such canvassers do best when they offer some useful thing to people and do it in a few words. Such soliciting is often overdone. If it reaches the point where it competes to any extent with local business concerns, they have some right to complain. So many people are trying to sell things from door to door, that relatively few of them can accomplish much. The majority of them would do better to go to work with their hands on any useful job that can be found.

Mystery stories are especially valuable because they give highbrow and lowbrow at least one common interest.

Ninety million were donated to charity by New Yorkers last year, but far greater amounts went to faith and hope.

An East Orange banker threw pies at two robbers. And yet there were those who say the movies are not educational.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK.—"I've been in the up-all-night racket for twenty-five years," says Jimmy Durante, Broadway's irrepressible play-boy, in his new book, "Night Clubs."

"It gives you a maza tan and round shoulders," he continues, "but you do meet a lot of interesting people."

Evidently it also encourages a creative memory.

How does the ancient wheeze go? —"Early to bed, early to rise, and you never meet any interesting people."

TAXI THREAT

New York authorities are said to be devoting thoughtful attention to a mental test for motorists devised by the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles in Connecticut, and thousands of honest taxi drivers are breathing hard at the prospect of impending disaster.

Applicants for licenses this year in Connecticut are faced with 100 questions planned to reveal something of their character, intelligence and judgment. Some of the questions follow:

"What day of the week is today? What day of the month? Name the Governor of your State? How many are dependent on your earnings? Do you carry life insurance?"

The man who, with several dependents, carries no life insurance in apt to be irresponsible.

THE LIONS GET DANIEL

One by one the old heroes are slipping off the pedestals. Washington's gone, Lincoln has been toppled over, and Daniel Webster is out.

Samuel Hopkins Adams wrote a book about Webster called "The Godlike Daniel." It's been lying around the house till I got tired looking at it. The other night I opened it up and started to read.

I learned that Webster had no inherited wealth. He was totally incapable of saving from his very large earnings. He could stay in the House and Senate only if accommodating bankers and capitalists would give him secret retainers, advance secret loans on "insufficient if not sham security," and raise funds to pay his debts, as was done both in Boston and New York.

SUMMING UP

It was disconcerting to read that "The Godlike Daniel" was constantly pressing measures in Congress which would have vastly increased the value of his speculations or would have brought him fat legal fees; and that as Secretary of State he was not above giving financier friends advance tips on Supreme Court decisions.

That Webster hims 'I was under no illusion as to the moral status of these things is illustrated by his habit of marking his letters not only "Strictly Confidential" but often "Private As Murder."

It begins to look as if we need a new set of heroes—or maybe a fresh crop of biographers.

QUEST FOR LADY NICOTINE

The Bowery bum has the reputation of spending his days and nights sprawling ignobly in some dank and dingy hide-away.

As a matter of fact, the Worthy Brother does very little sprawling. When he isn't looking for food or a place to flop for the night, he's peddling in quest of tobacco. That is the one thing he misses more than anything else.

His trail lies close to the curb, eyes down, looking for cigar and cigarette butts.

He gets his setting-up exercise bending over to pick them up.

Are Jack Little, song writer, and Little Jack Little, the radio performer, the same person?

Yes.

What is meant by the South Sea Bubble?

The term refers to the financial scheme organized in England, in 1711, by the South Sea company, to pay the national debt. The company assumed the debt in return for an annual payment of 600,000 pounds for a number of years and a monopoly of trade in the South Seas. In 1720 the company proposed to assume the entire debt of over 30 millions for a guarantee of 5 per cent per annum for 7 1-2 years. The value of the stock was increased until it was quoted at $1,000 a share (August, 1720) when the chairman and some of the directors sold out. This awakened the public, and the crash followed (1720). Thousands of stockholders were ruined and parliamentary investigation showed that some of the cabinet members were involved.

HOME, JAMES

MADISON, Wis. — After watching the big congressional show in Washington for quite awhile, state legislatures, like Wisconsin's and one or two others, where I have seen them in operation in the last few days, seem rather small-town stuff.

And yet, once, when I made substantially the same remark to a practical politician, expressing some surprise that capable men could be found to attend to such provincial lawmaking, he answered: "What surprises me is that capable men are willing to trifle away their time in Washington, with so many more profitable issues at stake in the legislatures of their various home states."

With that he related how William S. Vare, Philadelphia's Republican boss, on one occasion had to forego an extra term in congress (he is out of it now on account of his health, but for many years he occupied a seat there regularly, this one interval alone excepted) because questions of such vital consequence to his particular group of political interests were pending in the Keystone State legislature was absolutely indispensable.

As a matter of personal vanity Bill preferred being a national representative, but when duty called, mere consideration of social prestige promptly went into the discard in favor of strict utilitarianism which meant being on the job at Harrisburg.

Tammany takes the same view. It is a commonplace in Washington that Manhattan's seats in congress, in so far as the Tiger's followers occupy them, are filled by those of the faithful who are regarded as entitled to distinction of some sort, but whose abilities or experience are deemed insufficient to justify sending them to Albany.

Tammany's theory is that the national capital is a place where, for reasons of civic pride, it is desirable to have representatives with the necessary qualifications to make a good appearance. At the state capital it wants go-getters.

The popular idea is that the state legislatures are preparatory schools for congress. Tammany's idea is just the reverse. Having tried a man out in Washington and approved of him, its policy undoubtedly would be to promote him into the New York legislature, were it not for the fact that the chap himself probably would howl, mistaking promotion for demotion. A Bill Vare would understand, but Bill Vares are not numerous.

Congress does not do so many important things as one might imagine. It talks about a great many but it is mighty seldom that it declares war or votes a constitutional amendment. There is too much pulling and hauling; too many sectional and other interests working in diverging directions.

State legislatures attain more actual results. Folk like Bill Vare know this. Bill realized perfectly that he could be spared from congress for two years without making any difference whatever, but when a matter that concerned him was hanging fire in Harrisburg he was conscious that it behooved him to be there and attend to it.

Tammany is as alert as Bill. It can think of nothing that congress is likely to do materially to the Tiger's prejudice or advantage. It can think of plenty that the state legislature might do one way or the other.

Here in Madison the other day the Wisconsin legislature voted an authorization to the state to engage in power production and sale whenever and wherever necessary to bring private power producers to terms by the competitive method.

The incident illustrates the difference between Washingtonian and state legislation.

For a dozen years Senator Norris has been trying to force a similar experiment at Muscle Shoals, but either congress has turned it down or the president has vetoed it, as at the last session.

It takes a state legislature at last to initiate the test.

It should work just as well in Wisconsin as it would at Muscle Shoals. In fact, better, for it is a completed experiment. Senator Norris had to modify his to such an extent, to get a majority in its favor, that it is doubtful how congress would have done. There will be no strings whatever on Wisconsin's.

The beauty of state legislation appears to be that it is less cumbersome, because a legislature represents a compact, more homogeneous unit than congress.

Once the time is ripe for a legislature to act, it is harder to delay indefinitely.

Obviously this is why individuals like Bill Vare and organizations like Tammany are so everlastingly on their toes concerning their state on their toes concerning their state on their toes concerning their state.

Law-making bodies, whereas Washington simply is a social rallying place, for all they care.

Babes' Care Is Problem of Divorcee

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

A worried mother, aged 24, writes that she has divorced her husband who never supported his little family very well, even in prosperous times, and who in other ways was impossible.

She took her babies and went home to her people and worked out for their support. Her parents are not old, but work hard and live comfortably although they are not well off. Her father thinks her mother should not have the care of the two little girls, aged three and five, as it is too hard for her.

The young mother wants to earn money to educate her babies, but cannot seem to get away to do so because she has to care for them. The children's father is out of work and cannot, if he would, contribute to their support.

Worried mother would like to take a nurse's training, but must make up two years of high school work before she would be accepted, and then three more years of training before she would be ready to earn money. She asks my advice.

I am afraid you will have to give up the idea of training for nursing for the present, Worried Mother. Your very best bet would be to get a job as housekeeper somewhere where you could have the children with you. Failing that, maintain a small home for the children and yourself, get someone to care for them during the day while you work and you care for them nights. The older little girl will soon be going to school. Or, you might, by taking a good sized house, take in roomers or boarders and so have the children with you and care for them.

It hardly seems fair that your brother should finance your education. You are young enough so that you can wait awhile until the children are a little older before you try to take the course you wish.

How does your mother feel about the matter? It is hard on her to have the care of the little one besides all her other work, and it is too bad that your father makes you feel your obligations to them, even though you do so appreciate what they have done and are doing for you. Maybe both he and your mother would prefer that you stay with them, take care of the children and help them with the work.

Think over some of these ways of getting along. Some way will be found. I agree with you that you should be earning money if it can be done without leaving the entire care of your little family on your mother.

B. L.: Maybe your parents have very good reasons for answering the boy B. L. Don't run away and marry. That would not make you happier. Wait awhile, don't tease them, and see if things won't change.

Mrs. P.: Blonde slippers with the white evening dress would be all right, or black slippers would be good, especially if you wore something else black on the white, like a black velvet sash, black flower of black beads and earrings. The black and white color scheme is so good nowadays. I hope you have a nice time.

Fat or Thin, Know Your Type

By GLADYS GLAD

Sally Phipps, the pretty little red-haired actress, who recently deserted Hollywood to appear in one of the better Broadway shows, is considered one of the best dressed women in the theatrical profession. And Sally claims that figure defects as the short suit, coat or jacket. Of course, if you bounce the Toledo up past the 200 mark, you can't expect a jacket to make you look like a 100-pounder. But for concealing that spare tire around the waistline, that over-plump bust, that too well-padded diaphragm, the jacket suit can be beaten.

The new suits and jackets are given a distinctly feminine touch by dainty collars and cuffs, jabots and lace ruffles. And the blouses that are worn with some of them are also profusely befrilled and befrilled. Few women find such styles unbecoming, but the really fleshy woman would do well to eschew the frilly jabots and ruffy collars. They will not only make her face appear broader and rounder, but will also increase the apparent size of the upper part of her body. For her, the narrow collars are more flattering. And they can be tucked or pleated to give the desired feminine touch without detrimentally influencing the proportions of the face and figure.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Blackheads
Ugly Duckling: It is indeed hazardous to attempt to remove blackheads with a pin. Don't try it. Correct cleansing methods, the use of an astringent, and frequent egg packs will eventually clear your skin of these blemishes.

Fingernails
Mrs. B. B.: You will have to wait for the white spots on your nails to grow out. These spots result from bruising. Take care that you do not knock your nails, and never use a hard implement to push back your cuticle.

Constipation
Worried Sick: Yeast is rich in vitamin B. It is not habit-forming. Correct diet and exercise will help remedy constipation. Add more of the bulky foods to your diet, such as bran, spinach, chard, cabbage, broccoli, celery and fresh fruits. Drink from 8 to 10 glasses of water a day.

Editor's Note: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs," 2 cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

Apportion Calories for Meals

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

If theoretical calculations are correct, a person will have to reduce the diet by 4,000 calories a day to lose one pound a day. Most people only lose one pound a day. If that is all you are consuming you would only lose a little less than a pound a day if you ate nothing at all.

The explanation for this, which I gave last week, is that when you do not eat anything you are really not starving. You are living on your own tissues: the body is breaking down its own flesh and storing up fat. That is why you lose weight—naturally. The point is that the tissue it breaks down is fat. And fat furnishes nine calories per gram and there are 466 grams in a pound (avoirdupois); 466 times nine equal about 4,200 calories (in a pound of body fat). The adult body requires about 3,000 calories a day, so the starving body will burn three-quarters of a pound of its own fat a day.

So on no food at all you will lose only a little less than a pound a day. There will probably be more actual loss than that owing to water losses, but that is the basic calculated loss.

This shows what a hard struggle it is to lose weight. It can be done but it means effort.

Now, of course, no one expects you to go without food, for any length of time. For any purposes this is unhealthy in spite of the starvation cure craze. But a diet calculated to lose 1,500 calories is not dangerous for overweight, a person weighing 130 pounds needs about 2,000 calories at moderate activity. So if you calculate you should weigh 130 pounds you can live on 1,300 calories with safety until you get there.

Many people worry about calculating such diets. The scales are a bugaboo. The weights are all figured in grams and that is a nuisance. Let us then calculate a reducing diet for 1,300 calories to get there.

First apportion the calories for the meals—300 for breakfast, 600 for the main meal, and 400 for supper. This is on the principle that the big meal of the day should be at noon—at the height of activity so you can work it off by evening. The small meal at night is because while you are absorbing it you are asleep, making no effort, using up little fuel. So do not give yourself a surplus to store up.

Then apportion the food elements. We will use a high carbohydrate diet: it is more palatable, more filling, gives a greater variety. Besides, to consume its own fat we should have a good amount of carbohydrate to balance it. Most of us consume about 400 grams of carbohydrate a day; so, since we are reducing our whole diet about half, we will leave the carbohydrates at 200 grams. There are four calories per gram in carbohydrate; they contribute therefore 800 of our total 1,300 calories for the day.

We should have a little over half a gram of protein per pound of body weight so for a person of 130 pounds we need 70 to 80 grams. This yields 280 to 320 calories. With the carbohydrates this makes about 1,100 calories, leaving 200 calories of the remaining 1,300 to be made up from the fat. As fat yields nine calories a gram, that means about 20 to 25 grams of fat. (Always leave yourself a little margin. Dietary calculation need not be too precise.)

So our diet requires 200 gram of carbohydrate, 70 to 75 grams of fat in round numbers. I will calculate such a diet and publish it tomorrow. In the meantime try to figure one for yourself for comparison.

Of course you know—well, maybe not personally—but anyway you have heard of Tyus Raymond Cobb, probably the greatest star baseball has ever produced.

Cobb, you know, was a mental genius and they still like to recall instances of his daring base running feats.

In a recent address recorded in "The Methodist Layman," Branch Rickey, vice-president and general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, who, you may be interested to know, is a former Ohio Wesleyan athlete and is the originator of the "Knot-Hole Club" for young boys, giving the youngsters a chance to see the game free, tells a story about the Georgia Peach to illustrate how Cobb made his own "breaks."

"Once we were playing the Detroit Tigers at Detroit. We lost the game that day by a score of 3 to 2. I remember in the eleventh inning, when the Detroit players came to bat, I called Carl, the pitcher over to me and asked: 'Do you know the third hitter this jinning?'"

"Yes, I do," he said.

"You will get the first two men, but don't pass that third."

"He was a great base runner and a champion stealer. His name was Cobb—Cobb. You have heard of him, and I wished many a day that I had not. I did not want them to walk him. I wanted them to make him hit."

"Apparently Carl did not think much of the suggestion because he did walk him. I can see that tantalizing way that Ty had. He looked like he was going to run down to second. Carl threw the ball over. He had a movement and a stance that was very decisive. You could tell what he was going to do. Carl threw the ball over and he made a slide to the bag, and the umpire paid no attention. Sometimes they are right; he was on this occasion."

"Then Leary cut the comedy and threw the ball high. When Cobb ran way out. Wellman saw his chance and threw the ball, and Cobb slid in. The umpire said he was safe, although it was a closer play than the other. Leary then pretended to throw the ball higher and finally Cobb ran way out and a second time came back."

"I thought it better to get Cobb going backward than forward, so I suggested that he throw the ball higher. I ought never to have said it. I made a mistake; Leary made a mistake. He never should have obeyed his manager on this occasion. He threw the ball higher just as Cobb ran away out the third time—but he never came back. He kept right on running. The man on first just reached the ball on the end of his finger but did not catch it. He picked it up quickly and hesitated."

"Well, then the ball was finally thrown to second base. It hit in front of the bag and bounced over Lavan's head. Cobb came down, touched second base, and angularly went on toward third without a ghost of a chance to make it. The third baseman knowing the abandonment of that fellow Cobb and his slide, knowing that, when he set out voluntarily to get an objective, he was willing to pay the price to get it—having this knowledge in his head had one eye on Cobb's shiny spikes and the other eye on the ball."

"I then saw the quickest reflex action it was ever my chance to see. That boy Cobb had reflex centers in his heels. He did not have time to telegraph his brain. He slid twelve feet in front of third base. And when the dust cleared away, the ball had fallen out of the hands of the third baseman and was going over toward the concrete in front of the grandstand and before we could get that ball he had scored. I saw the crowd tumbling out from every place."

"I said to the umpire: 'Interference, interference, Tom, at third base!' He did not make a slide for the base, but he made play for the ball."

"Mr. Rickey," he said then, "listen to me. Give the boy credit. He made his own breaks."

REVEAL NEW FRONT FOR DRUG STORE

Exterior and interior remodeling work in progress at a room in the Allen Bldg. formerly occupied by the Sayre Drug Store on S. Detroit St. is nearing completion, the handsome new front being disclosed by removal of the superstructure Monday.

The room, which will be reopened as a drug store and operated by Snider-Snyder, Inc., will have a central entrance, the door being indented twelve feet from the sidewalk. This permits deep, irregular display windows on each side. The front is copper trimmed with a black glass base.

WALKER'S LEAP FROM SONGSTER TO SENATOR

Life Story of Mayor James J. Walker of New York—
Sketched by R. J. SCOTT

THERE WAS A TIME in Walker's life when he'd rather have written a successful song than eat.

ANOTHER SONG, "Will You Love Me in December as You Do in May?" brought him a small amount of fame.

JAMES J. WALKER at the time he was a state senator. He was popularly known as "the boy orator of Greenwich Village."

WALKER'S PERSONALITY was ideal for a politician. Some writing began to lose ground. He was elected to the assembly in 1910.

STUDYING LAW at night, he obtained a degree from the New York Law School in 1912, and was admitted to the New York bar the same year.

(This is the second of a series of stories on the life of Mayor James J. Walker of New York.)

By HOWARD P. JONES
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, March 31.—"From songsters to senator" might have been the title of the biography of James J. Walker, if it had been written some years ago.

For there was a period in the life of the man who is now the highest-paid mayor in the country when he'd rather have written a successful song than eat, and it looked for a time as though he might do neither or both.

Paul Dresser, song writer, brother of Theodore Dresser, famous writer, was a neighbor of his, and "On the Banks of the Wabash" was on the lips of the nation. Jimmy tried his hand at writing songs, and soon had one published, "Good-Bye Eyes of Blue."

The song for which he was to become famous in a mild way, however, was one he was to have dined into his ears many years later when he ran for mayor: "Will You Love Me in December as You Do in May?" It runs as follows:

"Now, in the summertime of life, sweetheart,
You say you love me,
I'll give you my ear to you
Throbbing with ecstasy,
But last night I saw while dream-
ing,
The future old and gray,
And I wondered if you'll love me
then, dear,
Just as you do today.
Will you love me in December as you do in May,
Will you love me in the same old-
fashioned way?"

When my hair has all turned gray,
Will you kiss me then and say,
That you love me in December
as you did in May?"

Even in the face of this indiscretion of his more youthful moments, the mayor's wit did not desert him. He wondered during the campaign whether the voters who were enthusiastically singing his song would "love him in November as they did in May."

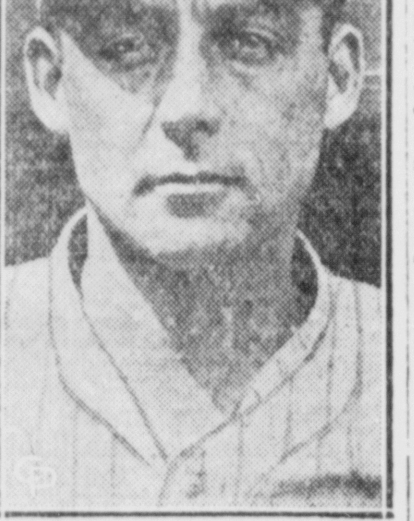

Miracle Didn't Happen. Perhaps, unfortunately for the song writing profession, and certainly for the peace of mind of James John Joseph Walker in this year of our Lord 1931, a Ninth ward Irish Catholic who was the son of an assemblyman could only break away from politics by a miracle. The miracle didn't happen.

And besides, the political platform was a good enough stage for any man with a sense of the dramatic, ready tongue and a personality that warmed folks.

He was elected to the assembly in 1910, studied law at night and obtained a degree from the New York Law School in 1912, being admitted to the New York bar the same year.

Song writing was behind. Politics was ahead.

MEET THE MANAGER

BY JACK SORDS

JOE MCCARTHY
MANAGER OF THE
NEW YORK YANKEES

Joseph V. McCarthy, new manager of the New York Yankees, doesn't believe the old adage that baseball "miracle men" bloom but once. By plotting the Yankees to their seventh pennant this season in the manner in which Joe hopes to prove he is right.

McCarthy is a freshman manager as far as the American League is concerned. But he has had five years in the National as Chicago Cub pilot. When Joe took hold of the Windy City Baby Bears in 1926 they were a last place outfit. He built them into a pennant winner by 1929 and when he resigned the reins last season the Cubs were league champions with a chance of repeating.

That made McCarthy, in the eyes of the baseball world, a miracle man. Now that he has taken over the Research Club at the old Miller Huggins championship Yankee team Joe is attempting to rebuild that outfit into another pennant winner. If he does he may be the first miracle man to repeat.

McCarthy is nearing his forty-sixth birthday. He was born in Franklin, Pa., April 21, 1885. He began playing ball with Bradford, Pa., in 1905. By 1908 he was in the American Association with Toledo. He played subsequently with Indianapolis, Wilkes-Barre, Buffalo, Brooklyn, Federal, and Louisville. Joe became Louisville manager in 1919. After piloting the Colonels to two pennants he was asked to come to Chicago.

McCarthy's career is unique in that he has not played a single game in either the American or National League, but has managed clubs in both major circuits.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Mar. 31.—After starting the day from 1 to 4 points higher, the active industrial and utility stocks pushed ahead aggressively this morning for the best rally in nearly two weeks. Before giving up the fight, the bears hammered the oil stocks, driving Standard of New Jersey below 42 for a loss of nearly a point and the other leading standards and independents fractionally lower. A few of the rails were also under pressure, Southern Railway falling 3 points.

LEGION FORMS RELIEF UNIT TO ANTICIPATE SUDDEN DISASTER

An emergency relief unit, preliminary to co-operating in a state-wide mobilization test Monday, April 6 to determine how many Legionnaires can be assembled at a given point to render emergency service in the event of a sudden community disaster, has been formed by Joseph P. Foody Post, No. 35, American Legion.

Designed as a community service activity, similar units are being organized by every Legion post in Ohio and the state department hopes to better the mark established in 1929 by California, which assembled more than 15,000 men in a state-wide test.

The mobilization of as many as possible of the 215 members of Foody Post will be in answer to a call to be sounded some time April 6. State Legion headquarters will not disclose the form this call will take, whether by telegraph, telephone, radio or advance sealed orders, but it has been suggested that all local posts keep tuned in on Stations WLW at Cincinnati and WTAM at Cleveland during the evening hours since these stations will be used if the call is made by radio.

Regardless of the method used, Foody Post will be prepared to communicate instantly with every member of the post, and will strive to muster as many Legionnaires as possible at post hall in the basement of the Court House.

Ninety minutes after the state-wide alarm is sounded, the local post will report to state headquarters, stating the number of men assembled in thirty minutes, sixty minutes and ninety minutes. The same information will be given for members of Boy Scout troops.

Under a plan suggested by the state department, Foody Post has perfected a skeleton organization of thirty-seven men, around which may be instantly gathered the entire man-power of the post should an emergency arise and its aid enlisted in behalf of a disaster-stricken community.

The purpose of the emergency unit is to perfect an advance set-up qualified to move quickly and efficiently to bridge the gap that exists between the time of a disaster and the arrival of agencies that are specially endowed for relief work. Services of the Legion, it is pointed out, would be most needed during the first few hours, because in a calamity of any consequence, state and national agencies will begin to move and will gradually take over the work.

Foody Post's relief unit will be headed by Dr. H. C. Messenger, Xenia Physician, as unit commander, with Paul Fuller, post commander, as unit first vice-commander, and Morris Sharp, former sheriff, as unit second vice-commander.

Captains for various companies have been selected as follows: Police Chief O. H. Cornwell, captain of the patrol company, which would be authorized to do police work, guard and such other duties as directed; C. W. Murphy, captain of the supply company, its duties being to prepare and distribute food to disaster victims and relief workers and render aid in housing and caring for the uninjured; Joseph Spiro, captain of the transportation company, which should establish a refugee camp, needed in case a large number of people were homeless; Walter Townsend, captain of the ambulance company, which would give such medical aid as is available, and provide hospitalization for the injured; Loring Shepard, captain of the communications company, charged with the duty of collecting, disseminating and controlling information.

Each captain is empowered to appoint five lieutenants to serve under his direction. The patrol company is to have charge of Boy Scout troops and act in conjunction with the sheriff and police departments of the communities being served, while Scouts as well as the Scout commissioner and deputies also may come under the jurisdiction of the communications company.

The skeleton organization was completed with selection of Attorney Charles L. Darlington as captain of the personnel company, and he will have three lieutenants under him. All members of the post not included in the skeleton group are assigned to the personnel company for service in the various companies as needed. This company will have a list of all members, giving addresses and phone numbers both day and night.

Creation of an advisory committee, composed of the police chief, city manager, sheriff, National Guard commander, Red Cross and city health officer, and a finance committee consisting of M. L. Wolf, R. O. Wead and A. E. Faulkner, cashiers of Xenia's three banks, is also announced. Four local hospitals are designated in the project and four dressing stations are also listed in the scheme.

Legionnaires, it is explained, have taken interest in making available an organized body to co-operate with civil authorities in the event of an emergency because they are accustomed to act together and under direction, enabling them to meet a crisis with a swift, skilled efficiency born of war-time experience and training.

SELECT DELEGATES TO NATIONAL SCOUT COUNCIL MEETING

Glenn R. Johnson, Osborn, E. L. Blackburn and the Rev. Adrian G. Lebold, Xenia, and the Rev. K. R. Roberts, Urbana, were selected to represent Tecumseh Council, Boy Scouts of America, at a national council meeting in Memphis, Tenn. May 5 and 6, at an executive board meeting at Urbana Monday night.

Definite decision was made concerning the council's summer activity at Camp Miami on the Bryan State Farm near Yellow Springs. Scout Executive H. O. Portz, Springfield, was selected to be camp director. Camping season this summer will be confined to the month of July only. Provision is also being made for a special camp for the three colored troops of Tecumseh council for a post season camp during the first week in August.

Executive Portz will be assisted by a staff of volunteers who have agreed to act as assistant directors in addition to the regular staff. Those already selected include: Glenn R. Johnson, R. B. McBride, the Rev. Adrian G. Lebold, the Rev. K. R. Robert and Fred Lang, of the executive board. Others from the area will be selected in a few weeks.

Scout Johnson, chairman of the Greene County camping committee for the Scout organization will visit each troop in the near future to present the camp idea and to suggest way and means whereby the boys can obtain funds to attend. The fee this year is $14 for two weeks $7.50 for one week. There will be no change in fees this year.

All troops in the area are now working for the first all Tecumseh Campers May 15 and 16 in Shawnee Park, Xenia. H. S. Goodrich, chairman, Springfield, declared that there was keen interest among the Scouts concerning the outcome of this event.

Those attending the executive board meeting from Xenia included: D. W. Cherry, Fred Lang, the Rev. Adrian G. Lebold and Glenn R. Johnson.

INVESTIGATION OF FATAL CRASH FIXES CAUSE OF ACCIDENT

An investigation by Prosecutor Marcus McCallister and L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, Monday afternoon developed the fact Bert Zimmerman, 21, of 430 St. Paul Ave., Dayton, was the driver of an auto which overturned after crashing into a pole on the Dayton-Xenia Pike Sunday night, resulting in his death and the injury of four other young Dayton men.

Zimmerman, who died Monday morning in Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, lost control of the machine when the driving shaft became disconnected, authorities believe.

Conditions of the other four passengers in the car, three of whom are confined in St. Elizabeth Hospital in Dayton and one in McClellan Hospital, Xenia, were reported as somewhat improved Tuesday.

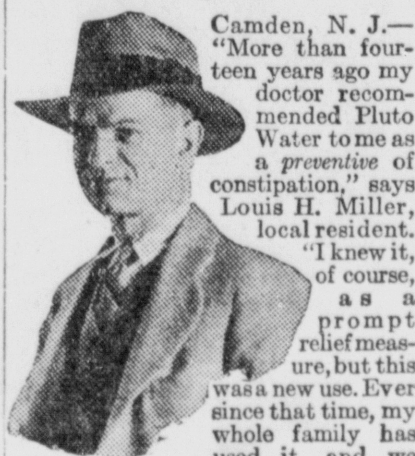

The injured are: Walter Krug,

also suffering from shock and minor injuries.

Zimmerman is said to have been pinned beneath the wrecked auto, the body of which was sheared from the chassis when the car struck a wire before smashing into the pole.

"Doctor recommended it," says Miller, of Camden, N. J.

Camden, N. J.—"More than fourteen years ago my doctor recommended Pluto Water to me as a preventive of constipation," says Louis H. Miller, local resident. "I knew it, of course, as a prompt relief-measure, but this was a new use. Ever since that time, my whole family has used it, and we would not be without it for a minute. The treatment is simple—a small dose, in plain hot or cold water, each morning upon arising. It keeps the system always up to par, and helps ward off many serious complaints."

Pluto Mineral Water is Nature's own remedy. It acts promptly (thirty minutes to two hours) and cannot gripe or injure delicate tissues. Physicians recommend it because they know it is non-habit-forming. Pluto Water, bottled at French Lick Springs, Ind., is on sale at drug stores everywhere, and at fountains.

cargo once a week from both the German and American terminals.

The LZ 129 will carry fifty passengers and thirty-five members of the crew. There will be a lifting capacity of eighteen tons, ten tons of which will be used in connection with passengers and freight.

With the lesson in mind of the flatted R101, which used hydrogen, Dr. Eckener said that helium would be used for inflation purposes. The American government has practically a monopoly on the supply of helium but Eckener said he expected little trouble in getting permission from the government to use the non-inflammable gas.

A further element of safety will be added in the form of Deisel engines using crude oil for fuel instead of gasoline. The development of the engines was expected by the time the LZ129 is completed, Eckener said.

"We expect to charge from $800 to $1,000 a passenger which is only fifty per cent more than the passage on an ocean express liner," said Eckener in an interview.

"We are quite sure that on the basis of these prices we will carry sufficient passengers to cover expenses and with our freight charges will make a profit in a short time."

"A dirigible trans-Atlantic line will be highly desirable for business men who wish to make a hurry trip abroad to transact their business personally."

"It takes from five to six days to go to Europe on an ocean liner and consequently many business men use the cables instead."

"On our dirigibles we can do it in two days eastward bound and two and one-half days westward bound."

"We will have a cruising speed of about 80 to 85 miles an hour."

Dr. Eckener said that he confidently expected that within ten days there would be two airship sailings a week from both sides of the ocean.

SENATE BACKS BILL TO CURB EXEMPTION FROM JURY SERVICE

ties which have a population exceeding 250 to the square mile.

"Growth today is not in the cities, but outside the cities," Senator Robert A. Taft (R) of Cincinnati, sponsor of the bill, said. Despite insistent alliance and a dissenting vote by Senator Thomas E. Williams (D) of Celina, the bill passed 23-1.

Senator Taft also succeeded in obtaining adoption of a second bill. It reduces membership of the state judicial council from nine to eight members, removing two of the three supreme court justices now members and adding a probate judge.

With three members of the supreme court of the state on the council, the council and the court would seldom have a different opinion on any question, Senator Taft complained.

The senate today had scheduled twenty-four senate measures for a place on today's and tomorrow's calendar.

Prison problems were booked for debate and roll call for this afternoon's session in consideration of three bills. One restores the statutory minimum for sentences to the Ohio Penitentiary, one creates a larger parole board and another provides for diminution of sentences of prisoners for good behavior.

A bill by which Senator James G. Lowery (R) of New Concord, hopes to have the state director of education answerable to a state board of education instead of to the governor was scheduled for a vote Wednesday.

A bill by Senator John A. Lloyd (R) of Portsmouth, to prevent the use of fictitious names by advertisers in newspapers, unless publishers are supplied with the correct names, also was on Wednesday's calendar.

PLAN EIGHTH GRADE EXAMINATIONS FOR COUNTY ON MONDAY

The annual eighth grade examination for pupils of Greene County will be held next Monday, beginning at 9 a. m., at all of the high school centers: Beavercreek, Caesar Creek, Cedarville, Clifton, Jamestown, Jefferson, Ross, Spring Valley, Sugar Creek and Yellow Springs. Pupils in Xenia Twp., will take the examination at Central High School.

Each group will be in charge of some one other than the regular teacher. A score of fifty points will be possible in each of the four subjects: arithmetic, English, science and history. All pupils will be requested to use pen and ink, but no extra paper will be necessary since the tests will be provided in booklet form, with extra space for solution of problems.

For a number of years the uniform eighth grade examination has been prepared by the state department of education. It was originally known as the Boxwell examination, named after Representative Boxwell, from Warren County, who was author of the law. A few changes as follows have been made in the examination. Science will include geography and hygiene and current events will also be a part of the science, history and language tests. The purpose of these tests is to place emphasis on all-around excellence in scholarship and it is hoped to stimulate pupils to do higher quality of work.

A general meeting of teachers and superintendents will be held in Central High School Monday at 5:30 p. m. to score all tests given in the county on that day.

MOTHER, SISTER, SWEETHEART, WITH SLAYER

HERE'S WHAT TO WEAR, MALES!

If You Would Keep Up With The Fashion, Better Consult Xenia Clothiers

SPRING styles being displayed by Xenia clothiers indicate there will be nothing gaudy about what the well-dressed men expect to wear. On the contrary, the trend is toward conservatism rather than fancy attire.

The male of the species plans to dress comfortably and neatly and will strive for that trim appearance and sensible comfort, both in cut and weight of the clothes he buys.

If he desires to be what fashion dictators describe as well dressed, he will scorn the jazzy, floppy collegiate wearing apparel and will place more emphasis upon good-looking neatness, well-fitting clothes with well-chosen colors and well-proportioned lines and patterns, embodying the two-fold distinction of being easy to wear as well as easy to look at.

CLOTHIERS agree the preference this spring will be single-breasted suits, mostly two buttons with notched lapels and natural or slightly padded shoulders. However, it is generally admitted more double-breasted suits will be worn this spring than last, with six buttons.

Trousers, as a rule, will be slightly shorter, either hanging all the way to the shoes or just resting upon them, with the cuffs about eighteen inches in width. The quiet patterns will be the preferred ones and you should choose between plain or small weaves, although stripes, herringbones and pencil stripes will be popular also. For the less conservative males, a few plaids or checks are being shown. The favorite color is gray, including the light Cambridge gray, steel gray, blue gray and green gray. The browns come mostly in the tobacco or chocolate tones.

A majority of the men are expected to look with favor upon the English box top coats in the single-breasted designs with notched lapels. The prevailing style is tweed.

This spring the snap brim felt hats still retain their popularity with the medium square or tapered crowns and medium wide brims.

In the neckwear department of dress, the small figured ties are given first ranking. This embraces florals, geometrics, checks, plaids and polka dots. Next in point of favoritism come the striped ties, many preferring wide stripes in conservative colors. The tie colors are somewhat brighter but seldom dazzling.

As for shirts, the white broadcloth has first choice, with the soft collar attached, the collar points being slightly more than two to a little more than three inches long.

The same style in blue ranks a close second.

SHOE styles may be dismissed with the arbitrary decree that the calf shoe with the box toe reigns as the most popular, the preferred color being black with browns next.

Fashion arbiters would have you believe that in the way of hose, clocks—solid color backgrounds—are favored, but it is pointed out there are many small all-over designs, some stripes and plenty of plain colors for the discriminating male.

CHASE FIRE TRUCK; AUTOIST GETS FINE

Charged with violating a city ordinance passed in 1923 which makes it a misdemeanor punishable by a fine not to exceed $25 and costs for any person or persons convicted of following a fire truck responding to an alarm, Ervin South, 317 E. Second St., and Harold Murray, S. Columbus St., were arrested by police Monday night.

South was fined $3 and costs by Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith Tuesday morning and Murray was ordered to appear in court at 2 p. m. Saturday.

Police expect to strictly enforce provisions of this ordinance hereafter, it is announced.

PREPARE FOR OPERA

CLEVELAND, March 31.—Preparations are underway here for this city's fifth annual spring grand opera festival to be given on April 27 to May 2. During previous festivals, the Metropolitan's season here has attracted so many grand opera lovers from all parts of the central section of the country that Cleveland has been dubbed "the first city in the world to make grand opera pay its own way."

Three women are standing by Leo Brothers, St. Louis gunman, as he undergoes trial for the alleged murder of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Chicago newspaper reporter. They are his mother, Mrs. Rose Jensen; his sister, Mrs. Esther Marie Dick, shown with him in court at right, and his sweetheart, Betty Cook.

PAIR SENTENCED TO BE EXECUTED

BUYRUS, O., March 31.—Death in the electric chair was the fate that stared into the faces of Walter Ralls, 32, and his nephew, Blanton Ralls, 19, Crestline Negroes, today.

The pair was sentenced to execution yesterday in common pleas court here by Judge C. U. Ahl for the murder of Sheriff George Davenport during a raid of chicken thieves at Crestline recently. Defense counsel declared today they would carry the cases of the Negroes to the court of appeals.

FAIRBANKS, MORSE STARTS PETITIONS AFTER DINNER HERE

A move to reawaken interest in the electric light and power situation and particularly in the proposition of Fairbanks, Morse and Co., rival bidder for the local franchise and contracts, was launched at a dinner given by this company at Christ Church Parish House

Monday night, at which citizens and merchants were guests.

Circulation of petitions to force a referendum vote on the two ordinances initiated thirty days ago by the Citizens' Public Service Co., an Ohio subsidiary of Fairbanks, Morse and Co., was started Tuesday.

Within the next twenty days the signatures of 25 per cent of electors who voted at the last general election must be obtained to bring about a special election.

The clerk of City Commission, within five days after demand for a special election has been filed, would be required to certify the request to the election board, after which the city charter provides for a special election not later than sixty days nor earlier than thirty days.

The position of Fairbanks, Morse and Co. regarding the light situation was explained by Attorney C. L. Darlington, and by three company officials.

During a three-course dinner Miss Eleanor McDonnell sang accompanied by her sister, Miss Mary McDonnell, at the piano.

PLAN TEMPERANCE MEETING APRIL 12

Dr. Mary Harris Armour, "The Joan of Arc of the temperance cause," will be speaker at a meeting at the First U. P. Church, Sunday evening, April 12, it is announced. The meeting is being sponsored by the Greene County Dry Federation, of which J. Carl Marshall is president.

Dr. Armour will speak on "A Woman's Word to the Wets." She has traveled extensively and has spoken before all kinds of gatherings.

Dr. William P. McGarey, Washington, D. C., assistant to the general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, will introduce Mrs. Armour and will give a preliminary address on "The Problem and the Prospects." The meeting is open to the public and there will be no admission charge, it is announced.

MAGICIANS TO MEET

The magicians will stage a benefit show for local charities.

The Theater

Just twenty years ago this month, a tornado of a man with a cork-smearing face bounced out on the stage of the Winter Garden in New York and went into a "single" he had been doing in vaudeville.

The house went wild over the stranger, but since the hour was past midnight, and the reviewers were all snoring lustily under their coverlets, Al Jolson awoke to no Byronic fame in the morning.

He had sold himself to the public, however. He was an entertainer filled with a curious, persistent flame; a pile driver and band and the jealous Spanish dancer. Rex O'Malley was a neatly sinister gigolo, Wanda Lyon was blonde and unbelievable as the matron, Vernon Steele played the husband with assurance and Trini was the dancing girl. In addition there were Patsy Kelly and Al Segal, and several Albertina Rasch girls.

Critics noted Jolson is a suave, mellower fellow than he was before the war. His bubbling, mocking attack is today more gracious, more easy, in a word, more mature. Audiences, including the bright young people of the post-war period, will be content that Al Jolson is back and brilliant.

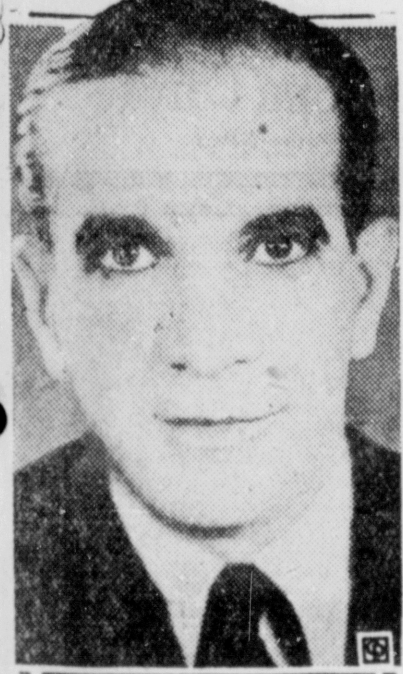

Sam Hardy and George Andre Beranger have been cast in "Good Gracious, Annabelle," in support of Thomas Meighan and Jeanette MacDonald. William Holden and Ruth Warren are also among the featured players in this picture. "Always Goodbye," Elissa Landi's second American picture, has gone into production with John Garfield as leading man.

humming bird all evening, who would blandly announce: "You ain't heard nothing yet" and then proceed with unwearied gaiety to do twice as much as before.

Last week Jolson came to New York and his great public after five long years in the movies—a migration that earned him the credit for "selling" the talkies in those early days of experimentation when they seemed doomed to bluish unseen.

To honor their prodigal star, the Messrs. Shubert and Morris Gest took the spacious but intimate Nora Hayes Theater on the roof of the Forty-fourth St., and recast it in the scarlet and black lacquer semblance of a continental night club. It was the perfect setting for Jolson. Playing the proprietor of "The Wonder Bar"—as the German importation is called—he made the place his own. He scrambled into loges, rushed up and down aisles, shook, cordially the hands of bewildered first nighters. You felt that you had never seen a real master of ceremonies before.

Weaving somewhat timidly around this kypse figure was a tidy, intermittent and rather pale little plot, employing the faintly familiar characters of the bored, rich American matron, the sleek, greedy, gigolo, the harassed hus-

You're hearing it all around you.
You've probably said it yourself.

Throughout the whole country, people not only are smoking Camel cigarettes in the new Humidor Pack, they're saying how good they are!

They're delighting in a new mildness; an aroma and fragrance found only in Camels.

They're learning how much smooth cool enjoyment is locked up in fine Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos expertly blended, vacuum cleaned and properly conditioned.

They're grateful for new throat-ease!

Natural moisture, that's what does it!

Factory-fresh Camels air-sealed in the new sanitary package which keeps the dust and germs out and keeps the flavor in.

Don't take our word for it—try Camels in the new Humidor Pack, and switch back if you can.

Then you'll see why the whole nation is saying:

"SMOKE A fresh CIGARETTE"
